Spion Kop's Son
A Rockefeller Definition
Mr. S. Speculated
The Robot Salesman

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright 1928, by Star Co.

FELSTEAD, with betting 33 to 1 against him, won the Derby. Horses, more fortunate than men, can inherit a father's qualities. Felstead's father, Spion Kop, also won the Derby.

Rich fathers, ask yourselves what would have happened had Spion Kop left his winnings to his son, to squander as he chose, would Felstead have won any races?

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., tells Fisk University students that merely going to college doesn't necessarily mean getting an education. It may mean only "forming habits of indolence, acquiring an unwarranted sense of superiority, or becoming dissatisfied with circumstances and environment in which one's lot is cast."

Mr. Rockefeller's definition of what education ought NOT to do should be posted up in every college. It ought not to cram the mind with dates, facts, figures, produce shrewd, money-seeking lawyers, turn out doctors that reckon success in dollars, or "fit men for a business life that is sharp, slick, shady."

Mr. S., who died in New York yesterday, had $10,000,000 a few years ago. When he landed in New York, 20 years ago, Mr. S. had only 28 cents. He died bankrupt, assets nil.

Yes, Mr. S. speculated. Those who think they can win at gambling are mistaken. Bull market or bear market, good times or bad, in the end they lose.

The mechanical man, or "Talking Robot," has been financed $25,000,000 worth.

Manufactured in thousands, he will be used as a salesman, mechanically uttering certain words, handing out cigarettes, etc.

You may say: "But he cannot THINK, how can he be a salesman?"

He can be THAT kind of a salesman, and it's a numerous kind.

In this age of sudden changes, you can't be sure what a little daughter in the cradle will do when she gets out and develops ideas.

In Ohio, 50 years ago, an earnest young clerk named Phipps worked all day in a hardware store, then walked eight miles and back to keep books for a blacksmith. Phipps, the blacksmith, and young Andrew Carnegie went into the iron business together.

Phipps accumulated millions, and his daughter, the Hon. Mrs. Frederick Guest, wife of the former British air minister, uses some of her money to finance Miss Earhart's flying trip across the Atlantic.

Girls generally spend money accumulated by rich fathers more wisely than boys spend it. This confirms Galton's statement in his book on heredity, that the father's genius is inherited by the daughter.

Australia has about the population of New York city, 6,000,000. In flying genius, Australia's 6,000,000 leaves New York's 6,000,000 far behind.

Five of the world's greatest fliers, Sir Ross Smith, Sir George Wilkins, Harold Bert Hinkler, Charles Kingsford-Smith and Charles Ulm, are Australians. One of our fliers beats them all, but he doesn't come from New York City.

Good fliers are important to Australia, living in the shadow of 70,000,000 Japanese and 400,000,000 Chinese.

Six million people with the right flying equipment would be

Suva, June 6 (Cable)—Kingsford-Smith just returned from Naselai Beach and reports quite good takeoff possible there. Subject, of course, to good weather tomorrow afternoon (8 p. m. Thursday here; 7 p. m. Wednesday in San Francisco).

It will take approximately four hours to fuel plane and about 24 hours after the takeoff, we will land at Brisbane, Australia.

We all went to bed yesterday afternoon. Smith and I slept until 1 a. m. We then discussed all plans for the next hop and walked over

EARHART PLANE TRIES 4TH TIME TO HOP OFF

Trepassey, June 7 (AP)—The monoplane Friendship made three unsuccessful attempts today to take off from the harbor her for it projected flight across the Atlantic. The plane was apparently too heavily laden and the wind too light to enable it to rise.

The plane, bearing Miss Amelia Earhart, Boston social worker, as passenger and co-pilot; Wilmer Stultz, pilot, and Lou Gordon, mechanic, was loosened from its moorings again at 11:30 a. m., eastern daylight time, and preparations were made for a fourth attempt.

Carrying a full load of gasoline, the Friendship rested heavy on the water as it was towed out for the first attempts this morning. The wind was light and shifting, and contributed little buoyant force as the motors pulled the heavy craft over the surface.

After the three futile attempts to rise, it was decided to wait in the hope that the breeze would freshen during the day.

ELCHO CIGAR OFFERS
$100 FOR BEST ANSWER

The Elcho Cigar Company is the only big Boston Cigar Manufacturer making cigars by hand. Until recently this was true of its competitors.

These competitors now make cigars by machine, but some continue to advertise them as hand rolled.

The Elcho Cigar Company will give $100 to the person writing the best letter why these manufacturers, making cigars by machine, continue to advertise them as hand rolled. Answer must be brief.

Send your answer to Elcho Cigar Co., 376 Atlantic Ave., Boston. Contest closes June 30th.

MABEL BOLL'S PLANE IS FORCED BACK BY HEAVY FOG ON HOP TO MAINE

New York, June 7—After being in the air for six hours today the monoplane Columbia, with Mabel Boll, "Queen of Diamonds," and three male fliers aboard, returned to Curtiss Field here, the plane having failed to make Old Orchard Beach, Me., on the first leg of a proposed transatlantic flight.

The fliers were forced back by a heavy fog and bad weather.

Miss Boll, sponsor of the flight, expressed disappointment that the first short hop of the proposed long journey should have been unsuccessful, but said that this would have no effect on her determination to go through with the ocean flight.

She said that if weather conditions improved, another take-

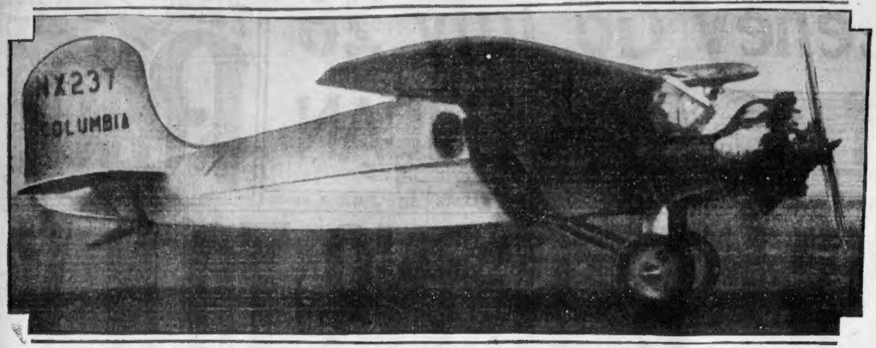
"I Flew It Once, Can Do It Again!" ⁂ Thought Columbia But It Returned ⁂ With Queen of Diamonds



PLANE'S TAKEOFF TODAY FOR A RETURN TRIP OVER THE ATLANTIC TO EUROPE

Here's the Columbia as she left the ground at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., today, for Europe. It's the only plane that ever flew the ocean and then set out on a return trip over approximately the same course to fly it again.. Where it carried two men then, today it carried three men and a woman, but fog forced it to return after hours of flying.

MABEL BOLL FLYING TO OLD ORCHARD IN PLANE COLUMBIA

off would be made later this afternoon for Old Orchard.

The Columbia, loaned to Miss Boll for her transatlantic venture by Charles A. Levine, who flew in it to Germany with Clarence Chamberlin last summer, hopped off from Roosevelt Field at 6:14 o'clock, daylight time, this morning.

When it failed to arrive at Old Orchard anxiety began to be felt.

It was almost exactly six hours after the takeoff that the monoplane suddenly reappeared over the Long Island fields and dropped out of the sky to a graceful landing.

Miss Boll, who hopes to be the first woman to fly across the ocean, was accompanied on today's flight by Oliver Le Boutillier and Arthur Argles, who will be co-pilots on the ocean flight, and Andrew Surini, a mechanic.

Le Boutillier said that conditions were good for the first part of the flight, but that soon dense fog was encountered and it was found impossible to continue. After several hours of groping through the fog, the Columbia was headed home.

When the plane, after being out nearly five hours, had not reached Old Orchard and had been sighted at only one place, Monponsett, on Cape Cod, it was believed by friends of the girl that she either had directed the plant straight to Halifax, N. S., or Harbor Grace., N. F.

Some of her friends even declared they believed the dashing "Queen of Diamonds" had started on the great hop to Europe itself.

On one hand this belief was discounted by the fact that a mechanic was in the Columbia's cabin when the ship roared down the Roosevelt Field runway and took the air on the sudden-planned flight.

But on the other hand Levine, the plane's owner, aroused some psceculation at the field by altering his own program and failing to follow the fliers in another plane.

Levine had announced his intention of going to Old Orchard in the second ship to be present at the hopoff for Europe. After a conference in the hangar, he said he would not fly until later in the day. Then he returned to New York with Mabel Boll's mother.

At 8:05 a. m., just 1 hour and 51 minutes after the hop-off from Roosevel tField, the Columbia, flying low in a fog, was sighted over Monponsett, near Plymouth. It was the only report of the ship to be received until its return to Curtiss Field.

According to the Monponsett observers who declared the ship in the mist to be a silver-hued monoplane, the plane was following practically the same course that Lindbergh took in his beat up the coast from New York on that rainy morning a year ago.

The Columbia's license number, NX-237, was not distinguishable to the watchers, however. This number is painted on the under side of both wing sections.

War Hero in Crew

With Miss Boll in the big plane were Oliver Le Boltillier, pilot; Arthur Argles, navigator and relief pilot, and Andrew Surini, mechanic.

Both Le Boutillier and Argles are experienced men of the air and both are veterans of the Royal Flying Corps, although Americans.

Le Boutillier was in the famous flight led by Roy Brown, Canadian ace, when Brown shot down Baron von Richthofen, German ace, and, up to then, the ace of the war.

The hopoff at Roosevelt Field was made from the same runway used by Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd and others.

Of necessity, the four riders were somewhat cramped, especially the mechanic, who was forced to sit on the floor of the fuselage between two extra gas tanks.

For Miss Boll, a tiny compartment had been built behind these two tanks and the furnishings of her aerial apartment consisted only af o three-legged stool and the ship's larder, not yet stocked, however.

The pilot and navigator rode in comparative comfort, sitting side by side in the control portions.

Miss Boll had arrived at Curtiss Field shortly after 5 a. m. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Josephine Boll, by Levine and by the pilot and navigator.

The "Queen of Diamonds" wore on the motor trip from New York a leather flying jacket over her mannish tweed tailored suit. In her hand when she got out of the car was a flying helmet wit hgoggles attached.

Although the girl would not declare herself, an unidentified friend who had greeted her said Miss Boll had made her will, but that her diamonds were being carried by her in some part of her clothing.

Speed Into Mist

Then the big plane was pulled out of the hangar and was taken over to Roosevelt Field. Although carrying only 200 gallons of gasoline, the ship was pulled up and poised on the inclined runway.

Miss Boll made no ceremony of her departure. At Le Boutillier's direction, she entered the cabin and squeezed into her tiny compartment.

Surini climbed in and took his place. Le Boltillier, with a final word of instruction to the mechanics who had stripped the trapaulin from the big Wright Whirlwind motor, slid into his seat beside Argles and gave the word.

The motor had been warmed once in the hangar by the mechanics, and Le Boutillier gave it only five minutes of idling before signalling to remove the chocks and let go the retaining ropes.

The motor shot the Columbia down the incline, the plane bounced, held the ground, bounced again and was in the air in an astonishingly short run.

LeBoutillier had a good 50 feet of altitude as he took the ship over the gully where Rene Fonck crashed his ship in an attempt to take off for a transatlantic flight that ended with the crash and the death of two men.

Less than 100 spectators witnessed the departure of the Columbia.

Within three minutes of the takeoff, the Columbia had vanished into the mist, headed northeast for Cape Cod.

Levine and Mrs. Boll had planned to follow immediately in a Fokker Universal plane recently purchased by Levine from Bert Acosta. He announced following the Columbia hop off, however, that he would delay his departure until late in the day.

Then he returned to New York with Mrs. Boll.

Amelia Earhart Was Once Known as 'Girl in Brown'

The "Lindbergh Girl" was known as the "Girl in Brown" when she was a student at Hyde Park high school near Chicago.

Amelia Earhart, who has astonished a world by her temerity in planning a flight across the Atlantic, was known in those days as "a meek and retiring figure."

William Gemmill, Jr., son of a superior court judge in Chicago, told of the girl's schooldays.

"Amelia was the type who cared nothing about what others might think. She planned her own course and followed it, regardless of friends," he said.

DISMISSAL OF DIVORCE ACTION IS AFFIRMED

The full bench of the Supreme Court has affirmed a decree of Judge Prest of the Suffolk County Probate Court in dismissing a suit for divorce brought by Sidney R. Vinton of 134 Laselle st., West Roxbury, against Clara H. Vinton, who he charged with having committed a serious offense. Judge Prest ruled that Vinton connived to have his wife commit the offense so that he might secure a divorce.

Judge Wait, who wrote the opinion of the full court, says, "We need not recite at length the evidence here presented. What took place immediately on the discovery of his wife's transgression considered in the light of the admitted desire of the libellant will support the inference which the judge made, that his contribution to the event went beyond the part of spectator to that of manager. The case stands on the border line of connivance."

Portsmouth, N. H., June 7—Mrs. C. Nathaniel Worthen of Bridgeport, Ct., was re-elected chairman of the fourth annual conference of New England region Girl Scout leaders at the coming business meeting this afternoon at the Rockingham.

CYCLE COP ALL UP IN AIR

Motorcycle Officer Daniel Sweeney of Revere got himself all tangled up in the transatlantic flight of Mabel Boll today, although ordinarily he's a ground flier.

Sweeney and a crowd of more than 300 excited Revere residents chased for more than a mile what they thought was the fair Mabel descending upon the beach city in a parachute.

Imagine their embarrassment to discover the descending object to be a yellow balloon advertising a brake lining.

The balloon, 25 feet in diameter, had broken away from its moorings on the roof of a Rutherford ave., Charlestown, building. It came down, partly deflated, on telegraph wires in front of the Church of the Immaculate Conception rectory in Beach st.

Sweeney left his motorcycle, climbed a telegraph pole, deflated the balloon, and with a stick poked the bag off the wires. It fell on the rectory lawn and was taken to police headquarters.

TWO STRUCK BY AUTO ARE DEAD

Death today claimed the two persons who were struck by the automobile driven by Joseph F. O'Neill while they were walking in Fall River rd. in Stoughton.

Both Mrs. Velma Johnson and Harold Kersted died at Massachusetts General Hospital early today. Mrs. Johnson, who is 28, lived on Waters ave., Everett, and Kersted, who was 36, lived on West st., Medford. They were walking in the street, when they were hit.

According to the police the pair crossed the road directly in the path of the machine. Passersby picked them up, called an ambulance and they were taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital. Kersted had a fractured skull, as did the woman.

Ill, Commits Suicide

Dexter, Me., June 7—Everett Woodward, 68, committed suicide in his home here by cutting his throat. Ill health and inability to continue his work as gardener was believed to have made him temporarily insane. He is survived by his widow, who was ill in bed at the time, and five children.

HITS EXCLUSIVE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lowell, June 7—Sunday schools need new teaching methods, in the opinion of Rev. Dr. George Huntley, president of the National Sunday School Association, expressed here at the Merrimack Valley Conference of Universalist Churches.

"We need zeal and devotion such as a business man has to put into his business or an artist into his art if he wishes to succeed," Dr. Huntley declared. "There is a tendency today to feel that the Sunday school is only for the few. We must realize that on the care of the children of today depends the religious success of the future."

The Rev. Wallace Rose of Lynn urged the introduction of businesslike methods, citing a revolving board of trustees as an example.

One hundred and fifty delegates were present from Haverhill, Lawrence, Methuen, Nashua, N. H., Manchester and other points along the Merrimack valley.

WOMAN SOUGHT AS KIDNAPER

New York, June 7—A woman in a gray wig is sought as the kidnaper of 10-year-old Grace Budd, taken from her home here last Monday.

The woman gave her name as "Mrs. Hemming of Union City, New Jersey," though police doubt that this is her real name and address. The wig she wore over her brown hair was obvious, according to witnesses.

The child left her home bound for a party, and was driven away, the investigators say, by Frank Howard, who represented himself to be a local farmer.

HORSE THIEF DETECTORS OFFICIALLY DISSOLVE

Hanover, Pa., June 7—The balance in the treasury of the Hanover Association for Detecting Horse Thieves and Recovering Horses, organized April 26, 1839, and officially dissolved on May 26 of this year, was distributed among 96 members, each receiving $12.15.

At one time the association had a membership of 545 within its ranks to track down the horse thief and recover horses which had been stolen. Three dividends were paid, the last in 1916, when each member received $5.

DIAMOND QUEEN WOULD EUCHRE QUEEN OF HUB HEARTS

Because of her valuable collection of gems, Mabel Boll, who flew in the Columbia is known as "The Queen of Diamonds." She was a passenger in the plane, determined to beat Miss Amelia Earhart, Boston's famous aviatrix. She's greatly disappointed by her failure.

Girl Is Hysterical in Scotland Yard Case

London, June 7 (AP)—Irene Savidge, pretty 22-year-old London girl, became hysterical after a long session in the witness box this morning in an inquiry on charges that third degree methods were employed by Scotland Yard in investigating the arrest of Miss Savidge and Sir Leo Money recently for improper conduct in Hyde Park.

Sir Leo and Miss Savidge were cleared of the charge and an inquiry into the police methods used started on demand of members of Parliament.

Miss Savidge's attorney told the tribunal she had intended to call her mother as the next witness but Mrs. Savidge could not leave her daughter in her hysterical state.

John Savidge, father of Irene, took the stand. He said accounts of his daughter's condition when she returned from Scotland Yard were exaggerated but she was hysterical. Beating his chest with his clenched fist, he exclaimed excitedly:

"Can you imagine the horror and misery we have been in!"

Irene, he said, kept crying hysterically:

"Oh, why did they pick on me, an innocent girl?"

Irene only initialed the statement the police officials had her sign, she declared, because she felt afraid and would have signed anything.

U. S. LEADS WORLD IN BANANA CONSUMPTION

Last year the United States imported and consumed 7,000,000,000 bananas, more than any other country in the world. This is at the rate of nearly 70 bananas for each man, woman and child. And this figure is growing every year.

This statement was made by Victor M. Cutter, president of the United Fruit Company, who returned on the Zacapa after a five weeks' inspection tour of the company's plantations and shipping in the West Indies and Central America.

CITY MUST PAY $192,201.74

Damages totaling $192,201.74 for the taking of 89,493 square feet of land for the Field's Corner extension of the tunnel were assessed against the city of Boston today by a jury before Judge Keating on two petitions brought by Milton B. Paul for the benefit of William F. Kearns of Boston.

For the taking of a parcel on Freeman st., Dorchester, containing 36,048 square feet, the jury awarded damages of $53,423.16; for the taking of a parcel at Geneva ave. and Greeley st., Dorchester, containing 53,445 square feet, the jury awarded damages of $132,775.50. William Flaherty and John P. Feeney appeared as counsel for the petitioner and Joseph P. Lyons tried the cases for the city of Boston.

Lindy in Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., June 7—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who arrived here from Indianapolis, flying in his new Ryan monoplane, decided to spend the evening in Buffalo. Inclement weather, it was said at the airport, caused the colonel to change his mind about proceeding further.

A few hundred dollars wisely invested in Boston real estate now will be worth thousands in a few years. See the wonderful property values offered today in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads.

FOLEY PLANS NO MOVE AGAINST READING

If evidence against Arthur K. Reading is laid before Dist. Atty. William J. Foley it will be examined in view of possible criminal action in Suffolk County, the district attorney said today.

"Until such evidence is presented to us we are in no position to determine whether there is anything to refer to the grand jury," Foley said. He made clear that he contemplated no action unless the matter was brought before him.

In the meantime, there exists at the State House a muddle in connection with Reading's resignation from the attorney-generalship which can be cleared up only by quick action of the Legislature in naming his successor.

PUTNAM ON DUTY.

Even though the Legislature has not yet accepted his resignation, Reading is no longer connected in any way with the office of attorney-general, F. Delano Putnam, first asistant in the office, said today.

Putnam declared himself the acting attorney-general by virtue of his appointment as first assistant, designated by Reading as acting attorney-general during the latter's absence.

Putnam said he would transact all business required of an attorney-general, and would be that officer in everything except name until Reading's succesosr was chosen by the Legislature.

SITUATION CONFUSED.

As precedent, Putnam pointed out that when Rep. Francis X. Coyne resigned from the House of Representatives, Speaker Hull ruled that that body did not need to accept the resignation in order to make it effective.

On the other hand, a prominent member of the Legislature who is generally recognized as a successful constitutional lawyer, expressed doubt whether Reading's resignation did not automatically strip his entire office of the assistants he had appointed. He pointed out that if Putnam is mistaken in his interpretation of the situation the State has neither an attorney-general nor any assistant in the office.

The Supreme Court of Massachusetts may be asked to decide whether Reading, under impeachment vote in the House, can take advantage of the loophole afforded by his resignation and again run for office in the state.

HORSE SHOW TO AID HOSPITAL

From the large number of entries received by the committee for the Winchester Horse Show to be held Saturday, at Good's Riding School, Medford, in aid of the Winchester Hospital, the show this year promises to be one of the biggest in the history of that organization.

There are 29 classes on the day's program including hunters, jumpers, saddle horses and the horsemanship classes for the children.

The proceeds of the show will go to help the operating department of the Winchester Hospital.

FLY FISHERMEN GET GOOD HAULS OF SALMON

Bangor, Me., June 7—The catch of Penobscot salmon by fly fishermen at the Bangor pool was the best of the season, 12 fish being landed, weighing from eight to 18 pounds.

DETROIT BANK MAN CALLED IN GORDON CASE

Norman J. Katz, assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Detroit, was the first witness to be called today in the Superior Court trial of Eva Etta Gordon, Zella Hessell and Rae Weichmann, sisters, in connection with larcenies from the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc.

Katz testified that on December 15, 1927, Mrs. Weichmann, whom he knew, entered the Detroit bank with a girl she introduced as her sister, Zella Hessell, seeking cash for five cashier's checks for approximately $92,000.

The witness said he told Mrs. Weichmann he could not give them cash because of lack of proper identification, and asked why they wanted it. He quoted Mrs. Weichmann as saying Zella wanted the cash to invest, as it was part of a financial settlement made on her by her divorced husband, a steamship official in the East.

The witness said one check was made out to Zella Hessell and one to Betty Hessell who, he was told, was her daughter. Katz said he suggested the women buy securities with the check, but they insisted on having money, and so he agreed to send the checks through to Boston as rapidly as possible.

Previous to the appearance of the banker on the stand, Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle read a voluntary statement made by Rae Weichmann in his office on the advice of her counsel last January.

In this statement Mrs. Weichmann said she received a check for $20,000 from Zella in December, and that Eva was present. The woman said she took the money to Detroit, believing it to be the property of the steamship company.

She told of conversations with Gordon in which he said he got a lot of money, but failed to go into details. Mrs. Weichmann said when she asked Gordon if he ran liquor on the lakes, he failed to answer.

U. S. BUYS PARIS EMBASSY

Paris, June 7 (AP)—The American Government is buying for $1,250,000 one of the best located buildings in Paris, overlooking Place De La Concorde from the corner of Avenue Gabriel. It will be used for the offices of the American Embassy, the Consulate-General, the American Shipping Board and a half a dozen other official representatives. The building now houses a club, the Union Artistique.

Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador, is thus realizing an idea he has had for several years—to house all the American Government offices under one roof instead of in 10 different parts of the city as at present. The arrangement of scattered offices entails a total rental which is considerably more than the interest charges will be on the price of a building large enough for all.

CENTENARIAN TO LAY MASONIC CORNER STONE

Portsmouth, N. H., June 7—Thomas Neil, who will be 100 years old next December, assisted in spreading the cement at the laying of the cornerstone for the new Masonic temple. The ceremonies were under the supervision of the Grand Lodge of New Hampshire, with Grand Master J. Melvin Dresser, of Berlin, presiding. Frank J. Philbrick of this city, a past grand master of St. John's Lodge, Boston, the oldest lodge in the country, delivered the address.

AS "LADY LINDY" FLIES HER PLANE
This photo shows Miss Earhart in flying costume, all ready for her greatest adventure. The remarkable likeness between her features and those of Col. Lindbergh has occasioned much comment. Friends point to it as a good omen of the air. The Boston girl has high courage, coupled with a quiet demeanor that makes her a favorite with all who know her. Her faith in her adventure is supreme.

SUVA LANDING DESCRIBED IN PILOT'S LOG

to have a look at our dear old plane.

We found four stalwart Fijian native soldiers guarding her. Nothing doing. We couldn't speak their lingo, nor they ours, and they refused even us, the owners, admission to the bus. It took some time to find their boss and arrange it so we could look the engine over.

We cannot speak too highly of the wonderful reception Suva residents have given us and the courtesy and enthusiasm with which they have been looking for a suitable takeoff ground.

At the civic reception we attended it was good to hear "God Save the King" sung again.

Rain and heavy clouds are blowing up here now, but Australian meteorological reports seem quite favorable so we will probably hop off as per schedule, providing the Naselai Beach place is O. K.

An old pal of mine, who was one of the party which witnessed our landing, said:

"I heard the whirr of her engines. I couldn't believe that the miracle had come to pass—that the terrific strain of the past thirty-three hours was ended.

"Then the Southern Cross swam into sight across the palm clad hills flying low down like an arrow to her mark. I began to blaspheme. I am a church warden now, old man, I've sunk to that.

"All of us old pilots remembered aerodromes on the western front and the waiting, waiting, waiting for the last late machine hoping after sunset for the many gallant fellows who never did come home at that hour.

"And the Southern Cross had almost—just almost—not come throug most — just almost — not come through. But here it was. We wondered would old Smith and Ulm be satisfied with the feeble preparations we had made. Such a tiny strip of ground to land a great monoplane when her pilot's nerves and judgment were worn out by 33 hours of difficult flying.

"Would Smith and Ulm curse Suva and us and decide to bring her down with a crashed undercarriage. No, she is flying straight toward us, then once around the ground. She'll probably have to fly around three or four times to make it. Bang, around he goes. The cheek of that pilot trying to show us what he can do after a 3000-mile journey.

"He'll go around again. No. My God, he's cutting off his engine. He is banking to land. No, he is coming too far in. He can't do it. He will switch on and pick up again. No, his wheels have touched. He's going too fast. oGod God, he'll crash, he'll crash into the fence. We cannot catch hold of his wings, they are to high.

"Come back Fenton, you damned fool old veteran war pilot. You'll be killed. Fenton, a tiny midget of a man, dashed in front of the machine prepared to die in a vain attempt to save her. She'll crash. The pity of it—to come 3000 miles and then crash that glorious ship.

"She's into the hill, at what a hellish speed. He's turning her. She will go on her nose. He is getting around. What a ground loop? He is around, wonderful, he is clear of the fence, clear of the tree by four feet. Will I ever see another landing like that after 33 hours of flying."

PACIFIC FLIERS HOP TONIGHT FOR BRISBANE

Suva, Fiji, June 8 (AP)—(Friday)— The monoplane Southern Cross rested on the sands of Naselai Beach today, awaiting the ebb of tide to permit it to hop off toward Australia, the last sea leg of its transpacific flight. The plane was to start at 2 p. m. (6 p. m. Pacific coast time Thursday and 10 p. m. Boston daylight saving time).

Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and Charles Ulm, Australian pilots of the Southern Cross, estimated that they should cover the 1762 miles between Suva and Brisbane, Australia, in about 20 hours.

They planned to stop at Brisbane and leave Hary W. Lyon and James Warner, American members of the crew, before going to Sydney, the end of their 7800-mile air journey from Oakland, California. Sydney is about 500 miles from Brisbane.

Lyon acted as navigator during the plane's flight from Oakland to Hawaii, thence to Suva. Warner was the radioman. Under arrangements made before the flight started in California, Lyon and Warner were to leave the expedition at Suva, permitting the two Australians to continue on to their home land alone.

But since arriving in the Fijis, Capt. Kingsford-Smith changed his mind and announced that as a mark of appreciation for the skill of the two Americans, he wanted them to accompany him to Brisbane.

An unruly surf prevented the plane from starting yesterday afternoon.

The craft was completely fueled today and all that remained to be done was to uncover the three radial motors and warm them up.

Since leaving Oakland, Thursday last, the Southern Cross has covered 5628 miles. The 2400 miles to Wheeler Field, near Honolulu, were covered in 27 hours and 28 minutes. The ship then was flown 90 miles to the Island of Kauai. The 3138 mile flight from Kauai to Suva, the longest hop over water ever made, required about 34½ hours.

Capt. Lyon's Wife Is Anxious Over Flight

Paris Hill, Me., June 7—A woman hung close to a tiny radio outfit and the kerosene lamp on the ancient hand-carved mahogany table burned brightly into the morning. The listener is Mrs. Jane Lyon, wife of Capt. Harry W. Lyon of the plane Southern Cross, scheduled to hop off from Suva for Australia.

The wife of the daring navigator and her sister, Miss Cashman of Boston were alone except for the maid.

"Are you worried?" Mrs. Lyon was asked.

"Yes," Mrs. Lyon said. "We are worried."

Italian Embassy Guarded

Berlin, June 7 (INS)—The Italian embassy was under police guard today following an attack by young men dressed in green shirts. The police claim the attackers were Communist sympathizers.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT

October 22, 1927.

Mr. S. E. Boney,
Utility Information Bureau,
Raleigh, N. C.

My dear Mr. Boney:

You will be interested, I am sure, to learn that Mr. Cooper's statement was carried complete on the North Carolina State Circuit, and also on the Washington-Atlanta Trunk Wire Circuit, which means that it was received by all the leading newspapers in North & South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia and Washington. It is altogether likely that a goodly portion of it was carried on other trunk line circuits throughout the country, even into California. I just thought you would be interested to know the outcome of my effort to have these statements distributed.

When I can be of service to you, do not hesitate to let me know.

Cordially yours,
J A Parham
J. A. Parham,
Managing Editor.

JAP/MEF

EVEN the reputable news agencies of the country were not immune from the plausible gestures of the long arm of the power lobby. This letter will show how the power interests "worked" the Associated Press to circulate through the South a story against Boulder Dam, written by Stuart Cooper, vice-president of the South Carolina Power Company. In circulating the story, J. H. Parham, managing editor of the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer, connived with S. E. Boney, director of the North and South Carolina Public Utility Information Bureau.

The statement signed by Cooper was a fantastic argument that Boulder Dam would result in the irrigation of a vast acreage in California that would produce a million bales of cotton per year and ruin the market for cotton growers in the South. Boney got Parham to run the article in the Charlotte Observer and then put it on the A. P. wire. On October 22, 1927, Parham wrote Boney and told him of the success with which the scheme had been carried out.

The Parham letter, reproduced below reads:

"Mr. S. E. Boney,
"Utility Information Bureau,
"Raleigh, N. C.
"My dear Mr. Boney:

In response, Parham received the following grateful letter:

"Mr. J. A. Parham, Managing Editor,
"The Observer,
"Charlotte, N. C.
"My dear Mr. Parham:

"That certainly was a wonderful piece of work you did for us. When I picked up the Spartanburg Herald Saturday morning and saw the seven-column streamer across our story, I was pop-eyed.

"Of course, I sensed at once from the Spartanburg paper's story that you had gotten it into the South Carolina system. But your letter this morning completes the pleasure of it all. I had no idea you were going to be able to get it on the big trunk line.

"It goes without saying, that we appreciate your co-operation. In order that all of our members may know of your work, I have just written each member enclosing a copy of your letter to me.

"Again thanking you and wishing you mighty well, I am,

"Yours very truly,
"DIRECTOR."

Nor did Boney go without appreciation, as this letter shows:

"Mr. S. E. Boney, Director,

"Raleigh, N. C.
"Dear Mr. Boney:

"I enclose copy of letter I am writing today to Mr. Cooper.

"I want to congratulate you on this story. It is just the kind of publicity I had in mind when talking to the State Directors in Chicago the other day. There is no limit to the amount of helpful and constructive publicity that we can secure if we will utilize men like Mr. Cooper all over the country. "Very truly yours,

"(Sgd.) P. H. GADSDEN,

ODD WILL COSTS HEIRESS HER HUSBAND

New York, June 7 (INS)—A modern parallel of "Brewsters' Millions" cropped up today when Arline Kandrick de Graff, $2,500,000 heiress of Meriden, sued for divorce from Philip de Graff, who only a year ago quit his studies for the ministry to marry her.

The rift in their romance was caused by the curious terms of the will of Mrs. De Graff's uncle, the late Edward Miller, millionaire lamp manufacturer.

In order to obtain the income from the bulk of the Miller fortune, the heiress must live permanently at No. 360 Broad st., Meriden.

Her husband, however, aspired to a musical career and wanted to go abroad. Thus foiled in this ambition, he left Meriden and went to Hartford, where he was employed as an interior decorator, and lived at the Y. M. C. A.

The De Graffs met while he was a student at Berkeley Divinity School, then in Middletown. They were married June 11, 1927, after a whirlwind courtship.

U. S. MARINES WILL REMAIN IN CHINA

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.,
Editor Universal Service.

Washington, June 7—Uncle Sam is not going to withdraw its Marines from Tientsin as suggested by the Nanking government in its note to Minister MacMurray at Peking.

Uncle Sam is not going to be in any hurry to recognize the Nanking government just because one of the Southern war lords has taken over Peking.

Before the United States extends formal recognition to any government in China, North, South or in between, that government, it was said today, must give proof of its ability to protect American life and property and also that it is fairly representative of all the people of China.

No such government has appeared in China for some time. It may be that the taking of Peking will enable the Nationalists, so called, to set up such a government, but their leaders have quarreled before in the wake of victory and it is by no means certain that they will not quarrel again now that they have taken Peking.

Americans In Peking Held by R. R. Blockade.

Peking, June 7 (AP)—With travel impracticable Americans remained in Peking today and the legation had no intention of evacuating them to other points which some person might consider safer.

Nationalist flags were flying, signalizing the change of the regime from the dictatorship of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin to the Kuomintang. There was no disorder and evacuation of Americans was regarded as unnecessary.

Peking was isolated by railway, no trains were running to Tientsin and for three days there have been no mails from the outside. To exclude deserters from the Chinese armies all the city gates, except one, were closed. The automobile route to Tientsin was regarded as risky since nondescript soldiers were roaming the countryside without leaders.

SAW BLOOD ON KNOWLTON'S ROADSTER

declared. He then testified he seized Knowlton's auto and delivered it in the same condition for examination by Dr. George Burgess Magrath, medical examiner for Suffolk county, and Dr. William A. Hinton of Harvard, blood expert.

"Unmistakable spots of blood" were found in the rear compartment of the auto, Dr. Hinton testified under examination by Dist. Atty. Bushnell.

He told of his examination of the roadster, April 14, and of his findings by the naked eye.

"Under the rubber floor mat, in the rumble seat, two cardboard matches showed stains like blood," he testified.

"The rear of the car was freshly painted in addition to other sections, but unmistakable spots of blood could be seen."

"Spots also appeared in cracks in the boards and on an iron crosspiece under the floor boards."

He testified blood clots on a pair of rubbers the state contends Knowlton wore the day of the murder were identified as human blood by chemical test.

He was cross-examined on technical questions by Atty. John Driscoll, counsel for Knowlton. The jury then retired to the street in front of the county garage for examination of Knowlton's roadster. Floor boards and most of the rear compartment were carried into court.

Dr. Burgess Magrath described the death wound on the right side of the girl's head, well in the front.

BODY WAS BENT UP.

"The body laid on its left side on a hard surface in a bent position," he said, in support of the government's contention that Knowlton carried the body in the rumble seat for nearly a day.

Two telephone operators were called to tell of a call from Natick to Beverly, the call to the tryst of death, the State charges.

Miss Hazel F. Cousens, Framingham operator, said she handled a call from Natick 8610, a drug store, to Beverly 906, Miss Stewart's school, at 10:45 the morning of March 29, the day before the body was found. The conversation listed four minutes, she said.

Miss Helen M. Lawrence of Salem told of passing the call through to the Beverly school.

The government rested its case shortly after the noon recess.

EVERETT MAN HELD ON GARAGE THEFT CHARGE

Melvin Malone, 20, of 41 Arlington st., Everett, arrested at the point of a pistol by Chief Foley of the Acton police and State policemen after he had broken into the garage of H. Stuart MacGregor on School st., Acton, was arraigned in district court in Concord on charges of breaking and entering in the nighttime with intent to commit larceny and malicious destruction of personal property and larceny.

Malone pleaded not guilty, but probable cause was found by Judge Prescott Keyes and he was held in $5000 for the grand jury.

Briton Plans Third Expedition to South Pole This Year

New York, June 7 (AP)—A busy summer in the Antarctic was promised today with announcement of plans for a third expedition to explore that little-known region.

Douglas George Jeffrey, retired British naval commander and veteran of one of the South Polar expeditions of the late Sir Ernest Shackleton, announced he would head an expedition leaving in September.

Commander Jeffrey said his expedition would in no way conflict with the expeditions of Commander Richard E. Byrd and Capt. George Wilkins, but would complement them.

FREE FIREWOOD DRAWS CROWD

The hearths of many Chelsea families are cheered today by the fires from the wood distributed by the fire prevention bureau of Chelsea.

As soon as Captain John T. Lehan of the bureau made the announcement that the wood would be doled out gratis, Chelsea householders flocked in thousands to the spot to carry away the wood in baby carriages, wagons, or anything else they could call into service.

The wood was formerly part of the stock of the Hobbs & Brunt Box Co., which conducted a large store yard for wooden packing cases in Chelsea and which several months ago went into bankruptcy. The yard was piled high with packing cases of all shapes and sizes and recently there was considerable of an agitation among residents of the vicinity because it was regarded as a dangerous fire hazard.

1200 EXPECTED AT BUNKER HILL FETE SUNDAY

Plans for the annual celebration of Bunker Hill Day in Charlestown on June 17-18 got under way when Mayor Nichols appointed President Thomas H. Green of the City Council, representing that district, as chairman of the executive committee.

John F. O'Brien was named chairman of the dinner committee with the following associates, James W. Donovan, Eugene F. Mehegan, William Woodman, James Noonan, Edward Morey, Michael J. Russell, Charles Caster, William J. McBride, James Lynch, John J. Murphy and George H. Johnson, director of public celebrations.

Chairman Green announced that the speaker at the night before dinner which is to take place at the State Armory in Charlestown will be Congressman Loring Black of New York. Senator David I. Walsh and other notables have also signified their intentions of being present. It is expected that more than 1500 persons will attend the dinner.

Following this a parade will be formed at midnight and make its way to the Sullivan square playground where the annual bonfire will be touched off.

The federal government will be represented by Asst. U. S. Dist. Atty. George R. Farnum and Suffolk County by Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley. Governor Fuller and members of the House and Senate have been invited.

PARADE MARSHALS ARE ANNOUNCED AT HARVARD

Marshals for the Harvard Graduate School of Education for the annual commencement parade next week have been announced at Harvard.

McANDREW'S CHICAGO FIGHT GOES TO COURT

Chicago, June 7 (AP)—William McAndrew carried to court today his appeal from the Board of Education's order ousting him from the superintendency of Chicago schools. The charges on which he was removed were that he had been guilty of insubordination and had fostered pro-British teachings.

The McAndrew petition set forth that the board members were not acting in good faith but were "entirely subservient to the wishes, whims and caprices of Mayor William Hale Thompson."

GIRL IS SEEKING TRACE OF HER LOST KEEPSAKE

Some good Samaritan, finder of a cameo near the Blue Hill avenue end of Franklin Park, may help a girl in distress if he will report his find.

The cameo is valued greatly as a keepsake, though inexpensive in itself, the girl explains, having been purchased by Miss Beatrice M. Spencer on a trip to the Mediterranean as winner of a Boston Evening American contest. She describes it as a profile of cream color with a slate background held in a case of silver lace work. The back of the brooch is covered.

25% CHILD ENERGY

comes from this delicious food

DOES that statement surprise you, Mother? It's actually true!

There's hardly another food you can buy that's quite as rich in energy-building elements as White Rose Bread.

And best of all, you never need coax children to eat it. They simply love it. They'll gladly eat all you give them.

White Rose produces muscle as well as energy. It's rich in protein . . . calcium . . . phosphates. Just the elements needed if balanced diet is your aim.

It puts solid flesh on growing little bodies . . . hardens teeth . . . builds strong, sturdy bones and active minds.

White Rose Bread is splendid from the "housekeeping" point of view, too.

It slices easily. Retains its freshness. Delights the most particular by its delicate delicious flavor.

Every loaf is made from carefully selected ingredients. Rich, wholesome milk. Pure cane sugar. Highest-quality flour.

Now, Madam, a word of warning. At times you may be urged to accept some ordinary bread. Think, please, before you do.

Let your grocer distinctly understand that no bread but White Rose will satisfy. Do not trust your family's precious health to ordinary, untried brands.

It's at your grocer's, Madam, fresh twice daily. Continental Baking Company.

ROBERT SHELDON OF BRIDGEPORT rides like a jockey. He's as healthy a youngster as you ever saw. Carefully selected food is the answer. And that calls for White Rose Bread.

LOUISE MAHAN OF SOMERVILLE says, "Practicing is good fun." "White Rose Bread every time," her sensible mother says.

BRIDAL FROCKS SUNNY, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Katharine Dexter Dalton Becomes Mrs. Joseph Delano Hitch in St. Michael's Church, Milton; Olive Buttrick and Alexander Norman Carruthers Exchange Vows at Concord

A BRIDESMAID TROUPE FROCKED IN SUNNY YELLOW AT the Dalton-Hitch bridal in St. Michael's Church supplied a bit of brightness Old Sol failed of yesterday afternoon. Skies were drear, to be sure; but, however gray they were, eight maidens decked out in smart yellow frocks and droopy leghorn hats did their sartorial best to offset such lack of brightness. Very well they succeeded, too. A modiste with an eye for effect did the frocks after the manner of a celebrated Parisian designer, and they were smart to an exceeding degree.

REACHING TO THE KNEES IN FRONT, AND SWOOPING TO the floor in back with the sash effect of trailing ends, they achieved the extremest of uneven hemlines, in a season that countenance no even line whatsoever in its mode. Armfuls of spring flowers, ranging through yellows and pinks, served to enhance the motif of sunny yellow so happily worn by bridal attendants. One alone wore green—Miss Dorothy Lawrence, in the maid of honor role.

FOR THEIR BRIDE SISTER THREE SMALL DALTON GIRLS were in attendance—Miss Alice, Miss Marian and Miss Susan Dalton. A still smaller daughter, Miss Florence Dalton, was flower girl. They and the bride, Mrs. Hitch, are daughters of the Philip S. Daltons of Milton. Miss Ellen Hallowell, Miss Harriet Saltonstall, Miss Nancy Hitch and Miss Adeline V. N. Hitch were in the group and looked delectably spring-like and pretty.

ST. MICHAEL'S CHAPEL-LIKE INTERIOR IN ITS WEDDING decoration motif matched the bride's clear white. Madonna lilies marked the pews and lifted their fragrance at the altar. In the window recesses clusters of enormous shaggy chrysanthemums, entirely unflecked by color, repeated the clear white arrangement. The bride's costume was the conventionally lovely array of brides uncounted. Its sweeping train and its soft merging of white into rich ivory were perfect, and the veil, an exquisite piece of antique lace, was bound low on the coiffure in a mode graceful and becoming.

IT WAS A VERY SMART COMPANY GATHERED IN SAINT MICHAEL'S to see Miss Katharine Dexter Dalton wedded with Joseph Delano Hitch. I saw a prospective bride there Frenchily frocked and hatted. Miss Anne Tudor she was, who on Saturday next exchanges marriage promises with Robert Stinson in Emmanuel Church. A beige-brown ensemble had Miss Tudor's fancy. And her chapeau was cleverly contrived of cocoa brown and deep brown. Miss Hannah Hallowell's king's blue chiffon was gaily sprinkled with flowered design in red. Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth contributed to a wet June day a smart suit frock of tan and red straw hat.

A RAY OF SUNLIGHT SHOT THROUGH LOWERING CLOUDS to light the bridal path of Miss Olive Buttrick, who became Mrs. Alexander Norman Carruthers in First Parish Church out in the town of Concord. White moire for bridal gown may be, perhaps, a revival from the mauve decade. For June bride of 1928 it is very effective whatever its vintage, specially when bride attendants wear crisp taffetas of coral and ivory white, as did those who accompanied Miss Buttrick to the altar.

TWICE A BRIDAL ATTENDANT IN ONE WEEK IS MISS THERESA DE NORMANDIE'S record. She was in the wedding train for Mrs. Carruthers yesterday, and on Saturday she will be in the processional swaying slowly altarward before Miss Frances Dewart. Mr. Carruthers is British born, Cambridge educated, and takes his bride to live in Wales. He is the son of Sir William and Lady Carruthers of Raleigh House, Beckenham, England. The bride's parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Stedman Buttrick, residents of the town famous in colonial history.

WELLESLEY, FAMOUS for its college, has some beautiful gardens that give it an added measure of glory. High in the list come the Hunnewell places. And if today be fair gates of the Henry S. Hunnewell and the Walter Hunnewell estates will be thrown wide that visitors may see their myriad beauties. Garden visiting is a philanthropical measure that benefits in two ways—it gives infinite pleasure to those who love flowers and gardens and ancient trees. And in this instance it specially benefits the social service department of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. The ladies' committee hopes for a goodly attendance.

LADIES KENNEL ASSOCIATION TO CONDUCT SHOW SATURDAY

Rare breeds of dogs comparatively unknown, except to those well versed in kennel lore, are promised as entries among the 600 dogs of all kinds to be exhibited Saturday at the 25th annual show of the Ladies' Kennel Association at Norumbega Park. Dogs are being entered from every part of the country and Canada. One valuable terrier is expected to arrive from the West by aeroplane in order to be present for the competition.

ADVERTISING IN NEWSPAPERS IS CALLED BEST

Real advertising is done through the newspapers, not the mail, in the opinion of Earle Bryson, vice-president of Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago, as expressed to more than 150 members of the Financial Advertising Association at the Parker House.

Vice-President Bryson urged that the position of advertising manager be made fully responsible. He said the advertising manager should have the co-operation of the officers of the bank or investment house with which he was associated, and not to be held in too strict accord with ideas of one or two individuals.

He spoke of placing of financial advertising, pointing out that it was better to utilize sizable space rather than be submerged into a now-and-then advertisement. He said this resulted in a house becoming better known.

Taking up the responsibility of financial and investment houses, he argued that it was essential to develop a confidence on the part of the clientele, through which a feeling of satisfaction would come.

He spoke of direct mail advertising to reach a clientele, placed newspaper financial advertising in the next category or first in national scope, following with a rotation of other media.

"Nowadays," said Mr. Bryson, "you may not feel the necessity of it so much in the East as in some other sections, but it is of the greatest importance with the American investment public to have them know a house and to feel confidence in it."

He recited various reasons why his particular house advertised, going through the various phases of progress and the purpose for which it was all intended. He called it a matter of education, especially needed in these days of widespread investment.

Mr. Bryson pointed out that the vast potential market for securities was not reached through the direct mail, therefore newspapers were in a better position to develop it.

Special Face Powder Made for Oily Skin

Doctors say oily skin is a sign of seborrhea, which in time covers the face with coarse pores like the skin of a lemon.

Now, there is no need to have an oily skin. Science has given us a sure, easy way to banish this horrid skin fault by simply using a special face powder. But ordinary face powders are not good for oily skin because to make them stay on they contain zinc stearate which is dangerously laxadermic (skin-relaxing) and should never be put on the face.

An oily skin needs an astringent powder to close the pores. Ordinary powders are the reverse of astringent. They relax the skin; the more you powder the more you open the pores. This will quickly ruin any skin, especially if oily. The powder mixes with the oil in the open pores and clogs them. This results in permanent enlarged pores, blackheads and often eruptions.

By replacing the zinc stearate found in other powders with a harmless, adhesive astringent, the specialist who created La-May Face Powder has made more than only a perfect powder for oily skin—he accidentally found a marvelous secret for correcting enlarged pores. Thousands of women made the amazing discovery that La-May refines coarse skin and prevents fine skin getting coarse.

So, if your skin is getting coarse, let La-May refine it to youthful beauty. Or, if your skin is oily let La-May correct this fault. The more you use it the more you improve your skin.

La-May (French, Poudre L'Ame) is sold by druggists everywhere in all shades at one dollar; also a trial size. Remember, La-May is most popular in New York; even in Paris it is called the purest, finest powder known to science; it is the only powder guaranteed to correct oily skin and reduce enlarged pores. When you try La-May you will say you have at last found the perfect powder; that it goes on smoother, looks better and stays on longer than any other. Give this notice to a friend.

If Mothers Only Knew

Thousands of Children Suffer from Worms, and Their Mothers Do Not Know What the Trouble Is.

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points on the tongue, starting during sleep with troublesome dreams, slow fever.

Mrs. H. N. Roberts, 502 Asylum St., Flint, Mich., wrote: "My little girl is relieved of her worms." And in a later letter wrote: "Baby is fine and it was your Dr. True's Elixir that helped her."

WILBUR LAUDS UPBUILDING OF NAVY

Annapolis, Md., June 7 (AP)—America has changed its attitude toward navy preparedness in recent years and believes in maintenance of a permanent force of officers and efficient equipment, Secretary Wilbur today told the 1928 graduating class at the naval academy.

Secretary Wilbur said that when he came into contact with the navy in 1884, the policy of the Government was to permit the navy to deteriorate in equipment and personnel, except during time of war: today the policy is to maintain its ships in a high state of efficiency and continuous effort to eradicate all weaknesses.

He pointed out that the undertaking of the modernization of 13 of the Nation's 18 capital ships retained under the Washington limitation conference "present the most concrete and definite, if not the very first, evidence of the intention of this Nation to maintain its capital ships at all times for immediate and effective service in war with the most modern navies of the world."

VIRGINIA VALLI

GIRLS' CHIEF ALLURE ANNOUNCED

Movie directors say greatest charm is Smooth Skin

LOS ANGELES, CAL. — "The flowerlike beauty of smooth skin is a real power—it captivates," says Edwin Carewe, director for United Artists. Beautiful eyes, a perfect mouth, glorious hair — none of these mean as much as a radiant youthful skin, says Hollywood. Under the blaze of the Klieg lights nothing else will do. No make-up is clever enough to fake the velvety texture necessary for the close-ups. In Hollywood they call it "studio skin" and give it the tenderest care.

Nine out of ten screen stars are using Lux Toilet Soap to keep their skin in perfect condition. This new soap is prepared by the famous method France perfected and uses for her finest soaps. Virginia Valli says, "I delight in the marvelous velvety way it leaves my skin—only costly French soaps can compare with it."

All the big moving picture studios have placed it in their dressing rooms as the official soap. Lux Toilet Soap is manufactured by Lever Bros. Co., at Cambridge, Massachusetts.

FOES OF HOOVER RUSHING INTO A HUDDLE

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Kansas City, June 7—Thoroughly frightened at last, the anti-Hoover allies were engaged today in a belated effort to whip together some kind of an organization capable of stopping the nomination of the secretary of commerce here next week.

Lowden men, Watson men, Dawes men, Curtis men, everybody, in fact, who regards the nomination of Hoover with sorrow and foreboding, are participating in the effort. Two meetings of this sort have been held and more will be held today and tonight, and probably every day and every night between now and balloting time.

Meanwhile, the smooth-running Hoover machine has been clicking with a regularity and efficiency that has painfully astonished the remnants of the "old guard" faction in the Republican party that have heretofore been somewhat contemptuous of Hoover's political abilities.

The Hoover machine has clicked so efficiently, in fact, that Hoover came out of the delegate contests before the Republican National Committee with virtually a clean sweep.

These contests are ended. Of the 71 cases actually heard and voted upon by the committee, Hoover won 65. The Hoover managers could have won 67, but they deliberately voted against their own delegates in two Louisiana districts in order to give seats to and placate two influential negro politicians, one of whom is for Lowden and the other for Curtis. The other four that the Hoover people didn't win were territorial delegates whose affiliations are uncertain. They are technically described as uninstructed.

At all times, the Hoover managers, some of whom obtained proxies and voted as members of the committee, demonstrated they were absolutely in control of the situation.

DEMPSEY FIGHT TAXES NEAR $800,000

Washington, June 7 (INS)—Jack Dempsey's popularity with the American public was set down in cold dollars and cents at the United States treasury today.

From the big ring battles in which Dempsey has participated since he beat Jess Willard in Toledo, Uncle Sam has collected nearly $800,000 in amusement taxes alone.

Considering the total paid by all who profited by these fights the taxes run into the millions.

Amusement taxes netted the government $537,830,000 in 10 years, the Internal Revenue Bureau disclosed, including the assessments against prize fights, world series baseball games, theaters, night clubs and other places of amusement.

Dempsey's battle against Carpentier, in New Jersey, in 1921, resulted in a tax of $158,904, establishing a record for single sporting events up to that time. Fighting Firpo, in 1923, resulted in a tax of $108,047.

Another record was broken, with taxes of $175,192, at the Philadelphia Tunney fight, where Jack lost the title. The comeback with Jack Sharkey brought $98,502 into the Treasury, while the government's cut-in on the Dempsey-Tunney battle at Chicago, last September, was $242,065.

Next to prizefights, World Series ball games are most profitable to Uncle Sam. From 1924 to 1927, $426,659 was collected from this source.

The amusement taxes have fallen off materially in the last three years as the result of increased exemptions. Under the new revenue law the prizefight tax was raised from 10 per cent. to 25 per cent.

LEAGUE CHIDES HUNGARY ON MACHINE GUN INCIDENT

Geneva, June 7 (AP)—The League of Nations council, at a secret session today, reached an accord liquidating the Saint Gothard machine gun incident brought up by Rumania, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. A sub-committee reported it was impossible to say whether the guns were destined for the Hungarian government, but emphasized that they were found on Hungarian territory.

Machine guns marked as destined for Poland and apparently forwarded from Italy were seized by the Hungarian government at Saint Gothard on the Austro-Hungarian frontier and destroyed despite a request by the president of the League council that they be held for inspection. Shipment of machine guns into Hungary is contrary to the treaty of Trianon.

FLORIDA DELEGATES ALL AGAINST SMITH

Jacksonville, Fla., June 7 (AP)—With more than three-fourths of the vote cast in Tuesday's primary tabulated today, it was indicated that Florida's uninstructed delegation to the Democratic National Convention would be "anti-Smith" in sentiment. Supporters of the New York Governor still were running behind the ticket in practically all districts and also in the races for delegate-at-large.

'Get Out of Here,' He Told Armour; Won Fine Job

Chicago, June 6 (AP)—A young time-keeper, who won advancement by telling his boss to "get out of here and stay out," was recalled today with the retirement of Fred C. Shaw as assistant superintendent of Armour & Co. after 39 years' service.

In March, 1890, Philip D. Armour was trying to construct an elevator in record breaking time. To inspect the progress on the work he stopped his carriage on a runway used by wagons.

"Get that rig out of here and stay out," bellowed the time-keeper. The startled packer hurriedly drove off but returned and asked if Shaw knew who he was.

"Sure, I do now, but I didnt then," was the reply.

"Well, if you had known what would you have done?"

"Told you to get out, you were in the way."

Shaw was immediately placed in charge of the job and the record was broken in building the elevator.

SAILOR MAY BE WINNER OF $1,250,000

London, June 7—Masten Webb is just an English sailor working on a coal ship, but he's also a millionaire, although he probably doesn't know it yet.

His ship is due at Colombo, India, today. When it arrives Webb will learn that the ticket he drew in the Calcutta Sweepstakes for Felstead, the winner, is worth about $1,250,000, if he still has it in his possession.

Singapore, Straits Settlement, June 7 (AP)—Strong rumor has connected the name of an Englishman, W. H. Wright, as winner of the huge Calcutta sweep in yesterday's Derby amounting to approximately $1,310,000, but Wright has refused to say whether the rumors are true or not.

kerosene-soaked string had been found burning in an attic of the place. A similar contrivance was reported to have been discovered at midnight.

Pending co-ordination of these findings the sheriff's office declined to express an opinion as to whether the fire and explosion were accidental or the result of a plot.

A gay party was in progress at the cafe, a popular film retreat, as the midnight hour passed.

With Chaplin were Marquis de la Falaise, husband of Gloria Swanson, John McCormick, director, and his wife, Colleen Moore, Renee Adoree, Jack Dempsey, Mrs. Dempsey (Estelle Taylor), and several other film folk.

Chaplin and the other motion picture celebrities were warned when the fire started in an adjoining antique shop. They left quickly and it was nearly an hour later when the explosion occurred.

CATS ARE STILL A JUMP AHEAD IN WATERTOWN

Between the devil and the deep blue sea of official action and inaction, Watertown cats are still "all to the cat's meow."

But still, there's trouble ahead of them.

While the house cat is doomed, according to the board of health, the selectmen have as yet issued no orders to the police department to order the cats restrained.

So they meow and yowl as of yore.

Edward D. Holland, chairman of the board of selectmen, said that as yet the board has not been asked to consider the formal request of the board of health asking that the police department be ordered and authorized to pick up all stray cats in the town as a result of the recent mad cat scare during which four people were bitten.

Patrolman Louis Perkins, sent from headquarters in response to a call from a resident of Gilbert st., chased a cat from the cellar of the house.

Mrs. Rosetta Fitzgerald of 122 School st., called on the police for aid to locate her pet tiger cat, saying that she feared it had been picked up by the police. She was informed that her cat had not been picked up by any police officer, and inquiries at an animal aid society and the board of health brought the same answer.

VETERAN WHO SIGNALED LEE'S SURRENDER DIES

Pawtucket, R. I., June 7 (AP)—Albert Phetterplace, one of seven brothers who left their home here to fight with the Union forces in the Civil War, died today. Only one of the seven, Jason, is still living.

Albert, the youngest of the family, joined the Signal Corps and served at Appomatox. He was one of the operators who flashed the news of Lee's surrender to the Union forces. Two of the brothers were missing in action and never have been heard from. The lone survivor lives in Providence.

FARRELL AGAIN NAMED TO I. C. C. BY COOLIDGE

Washington, June 7 (AP)—Patrick J. Farrell of the District of Columbia was given a recess appointment to the Interstate Commerce Commission by President Coolidge today. Farrell, who previously had been general counsel for the commission, was nominated to succeed John J. Esch of Wisconsin, during the recent session of Congress. His appointment never came up for confirmation in the Senate.

tective, James E. Holt of Springfield.

Among those attending the hearings is Frank A. Goodwin, former registrar of motor vehicles, who said he was there to represent Freeman Dickinson, boiler inspector of the Public Safety Department, whom he referred to as "the original complainant."

Senator Cregg explained that the first matter to be probed was with reference to statements made or alleged to have been made by citizens in reference to the conduct of members of the Legislature, officers, officials or others on April 28, 1927.

The other matter regarding stored liquors will not be taken up until Commissioner Howard of the department of administration and finance has made his report on the hearings recently held before him.

"The committee desires to know what you saw or what you know of your own knowledge of the subject matter referred to in the paragraph just read," said Senator Cregg.

The paragraph referred to was the one relative to prorogation night.

The witnesses were then sworn and Senator Cregg questioned them.

Terrible Eczema Goes Quickly

Strong, Powerful Yet Safe, Surgeon's Prescription Called Moone's Emerald Oil Has Astonished Physicians

Here is a surgeon's wonderful prescription now dispensed by pharmacists at trifling cost, that will do more towards helping you get rid of unsightly spots and skin diseases than anything you've ever used.

In skin diseases its action is little less than magical. The itching of eczema is instantly stopped; the eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of barber's itch, salt rheum and other irritating and unsightly skin troubles.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil in the original bottle at any modern drug store. It is safe to use, and failure in any of the ailments noted above is next to impossible. All druggists can supply you at any time.

A STATEMENT

RELATING TO THE FUTURE OF THE CHRYSLER CORPORATION AND DODGE BROTHERS, INC.

The widespread public interest in recent events affecting the Chrysler Corporation and Dodge Brothers, Inc., deserves an authentic and official statement and an assurance regarding the future of these two corporations.

Subject to the approval of stockholders, Dodge Brothers, Inc., will be acquired by the Chrysler Corporation, the plan of amalgamation having been recommended by their respective Boards of Directors.

Each of these great institutions will retain its identity, and will continue, as heretofore, to produce and market its own product in accordance with the high and progressive standards from which motor car buyers the world over have previously benefitted.

Each will benefit from the consummation of a plan which unites such tremendous resources in material, manufacturing facilities, financial power and manufacturing genius.

Dodge Brothers will continue to be Dodge Brothers, and Chrysler will be Chrysler. Their products will be separate and distinct and will be continued in production without interruption. Their sales organizations will be unrelated except as they shall mutually share in the advantages of the consolidation.

Both public and dealers may look forward to the great benefits which the consolidation of such tremendous resources will produce—and the men identified with these businesses may be assured of a stable and definite future, inspired by the progressiveness which has been responsible for this uniting of two great companies.

POPE HASTENS BROAD REVIEW OF MEXICO

Rome, June 7 (AP)—The Mexican religious situation will be reviewed exhaustively during the next few days by all competent officials of the Roman curia, it was announced today at the Vatican.

The announcement followed an audience granted by Pope Pius to Monsignor Ruiz y Flores, archbishop of Michoacan, who brought the pontiff latest word on the situation in Mexico.

A semi-official communique said that Archbishop Ruiz had presented the Pontiff a "report." This was not characterized flatly as basis for settlemnt of the controversy that has torn the church and state in Mexico the last two years, but its importance was evident from the fact that the Pontiff was closeted with the Mexican prelate more than an hour and a half.

Archbishop Ruiz, on leaving the Vatican, said Pope Pius showed himself extraordinarily well informed on the situation.

"He knows Mexican matters better than I," the Archbishop said, adding that he was eminently satisfied with the results of his visit.

The pontiff had the highest praise for the courage and long suffering of the Mexican faithful, telling the archbishop he had a special predilection for Mexico as a father feels for his son, particularly for one who is harassed and sorrowful.

The present situation, the pontiff declared he felt certain, would be solved "by the triumph of God and the church."

The attitude of the Holy See, he indicated to his visitor, would be to await the opportune moment "with that patience and courage of which Mexico already has given the world and the church such an eloquent example."

Archbishop Ruiz, one of the leading Mexican prelates in exile from their native land, was asked to remain in Rome that he may be on call for verbal explanations of the documents he brought and others already collected in the Vatican archives.

Three Mexican Trains Attacked by Insurgents

Mexico City, June 7 (AP)—El Universal today said three trains had been attacked by insurgents in western Mexico.

A passenger train near Pozos (Porfirio Diaz) in Guanajuato was fired upon. The military escort fought off the attacking party. Three soldiers and one passenger were wounded.

A freight train en route to the port of Manzanillo from Guadalajara was derailed at Coquimatlan, Colimo, and the crew carried off.

A dispatch from San Luis Potosi said outlaws attacked a fast train near Obregon station and captured the train crew. They uncoupled the engine and started it running wild down the track presumably to wreck a passenger train. The engine jumped the track and the passenger train was not damaged.

What is this "miracle cream"

... that has brought new beauty to over 4,000,000 women?

25c trial jar for 10c

this week ...... at stores listed below

UNKNOWN a few years ago—today probably the most talked-of, most enthusiastically recommended toilet cream in the country!

The strangest and most fascinating fact about it is that originally it was not even intended to be a beauty cream. Physicians first prescribed Noxzema Skin Cream as a soothing and healing remedy for chapping, burns, eczema and other skin troubles.

To nurses goes the credit for first discovering its amazing value as a toilet cream—as a beauty treatment for clearing, softening and refining the skin. Finding it wonderfully beneficial to their hands, they began using this dainty, snow-white healing cream on their faces—as a powder base and as a massage at night before retiring.

They found that its gentle medication cleansed the pores thoroughly—healed away all beauty-destroying blemishes, coarseness and roughness—acted like a skin tonic, correcting all oiliness or dryness, stimulating the skin to new healthy glowing loveliness. Largely through their recommendation, over 4,000,000 women now use Noxzema.

If you want a softer, healthier, lovelier complexion, make this simple test. Take advantage of the offer explained below—use Noxzema 10 days—during the day and at night—then see how much clearer, finer, more beautiful your skin has become. Get a trial jar today.

PEDESTRIAN KILLED BY TRAIN AT WOBURN

Evidently deceived by the fact that a train on the opposite track had just passed him, Marcellus L. Emery, 70, of Fletcher road, failed to notice the approach of a Lowell-bound train from Boston and was struck and fatally injured 300 feet south of the North Woburn station. He was picked up by Chief Charles R. McCauley and Patrolman Alonzo O'Brien, who were the first to reach him and taken into the station. He died before the arrival of Dr. Francis Logue.

BEST NEWS OF CONVENTIONS IN AMERICAN

Readers of the Boston Evening American are assured of the most complete and colorful stories from both Republican and Democratic national conventions, as a result of arrangements which have been made by this newspaper.

The two conventions will be covered by a corps of experts, every one thoroughly familiar with his task, who will tell the news clearly, concisely and entertainingly, describing the activities from every angle.

There will be Elias McQuaid of the Boston Evening American staff, veteran of 38 years' experience, writer of the Minute Man editorials and authority on New England politics.

John T. Lambert, special writer for Universal Service, formerly represented the American at the State House when Calvin Coolidge was Governor of Massachusetts, whose articles from Washington have been a feature for several years.

James T. Williams, editor Universal Service, with headquarters at Washington, is a former editor of the Boston Transcript, former editor of the Boston Evening American, and for many years a correspondent at the capital.

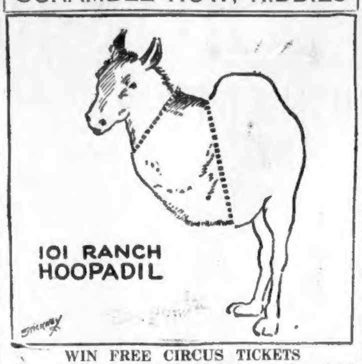
Then there will be a staff of International News Service stars, headed by Barry Faris, general news manager. They will include George R. Holmes, manager of the Washington bureau; William K. Hutchinson, head of the Capitol staff at Washington; Kenneth Clark, assistant chief of the Washington bureau; William S. Neal, head of the I. N. S. staff at the House of Representatives; George E. Durno, White House correspondent; Lawrence Sullivan, of the Washington staff, Roland Krebs, noted magazine writer, Raymond I. Borst, manager of the Albany bureau, and numerous other staff correspondents and special writers.

85 ARE CONVICTED OF GAME LAW VIOLATIONS

Eighty-five persons were convicted during May for violation of the fish and game laws. Fines, ranging from $4 to $75, aggregated $1209.90.

Those convicted lost their sporting and trapping licenses for one year.

SCRAMBLE NOW, KIDDIES



WIN FREE CIRCUS TICKETS

If you want to see the 101 Ranch show, paste the parts of the six scrambled pictures, of which this is the first, so that they will make pictures of real animals. The second picture will appear tomorrow.

Four thousand children are invited to see Miller Brothers' Wild West show when it comes to Boston June 18 for a week's stay at Andrew sq.

All without spending a cent and a little fun in the bargain.

Starting today, then, the Boston Evening American prints the first in a series of six scrambled animals. Then the next day and so on until the six are printed.

Reassemble them correctly and carry away that coveted ticket.

Remember, there are 4000 tickets with a chance for all to win one. But be neat. It will count greatly in your favor.

When the six are assembled and pasted on separate pieces of paper or light cardboard, mail or deliver—the six together—to the Scrambled Animal Puzzle Contest Editor of the Boston Evening American.

The first picture appears today. The final one will be printed June 13, and you have until Friday, June 15, at 6 p. m., when all MUST be in.

Each boy or girl should write his or her name plainly and state age and address. Each set must be complete.

Follow the rules and you cannot help being the guest of Col. George L. Miller, owner of the show.

SAYS HUSBAND WOULDN'T TALK

Trial of the seperate support suit of Mrs. Miriam S. Gutterman of Brookline against Louis Gutterman, Boston wool merchant, charging cruel and abusive treatment, began in Norfolk Probate Court today. The husband has brought a cross action charging desertion for unjustifiable cause.

As evidences of cruelty on the part of her husband, Mrs. Gutterman said he went on long trips without her and for long periods of time refused to speak to her. She said after their marriage she worked until the first child was born. The woman said her husband's present income is $7700 a year, with an interest in three other companies.

KIDNAP GIRL'S MOTHER GETS DEATH NOTE

New York, June 7 (AP)—A note saying her missing 10-year-old daughter, Grace, "is going to a funeral," was received today by Mrs. Delia Budd.

The letter, postmarked late last night at the Madison sq. station, about a mile from the Budd home in West Fifteenth st., was turned over unopened to the police. The message read: "Mrs. Budd—Your child is going to a funeral. I still got her. (Signed) Howard."

The girl has not been seen since Sunday when she left her home in company with a man who called himself Frank Howard of Farmingdale, L. I., ostensibly they started for a children's party at the uptown home of Howard's sister, but the address he gave for the party is non-existent. He is not known in Farmingdale where he said he had a farm and where he had agreed to employ a brother of the girl.

Detectives visited tenement and rooming houses in the mid-town areas of the east and west sides in their hunt for clues of the child and the man, but no trace was uncovered.

HEARS NEW SOS FROM NOBILE

Philadelphia, June 7 (INS)—A radio SOS which he believed to be from Gen. Umberto Nobile, commander of the lost Italia dirigible on its flight over the Arctic regions, was picked up here early today by Albert L. Byler, on an amateur receiving set. Byler is the Reading Railway towerman here who recently received the flash of the safe landing of the Bremen fliers on Greenly Island on the same set.

The mesage was adressed to the world at large and asked for immediate help. It read:

"Rush asistance, position 84, 15, 10, north; 15, 20, 40, east."

The message was preceded by the general call letters, "CQ," in English, Byler said. He received the message on 42 meters, one of the low wave lengths assigned to amateur use. He received the Greenly Island message on the same wave band.

"The SOS was faint but clear and distinct," Byler asserted.

Jekyll-Hyde Hubby Had 4 Women, Wife Says

Hartford, Ct., June 7 (INS)—Charles Ray, pillar of his church in Manchester, was accused today in his wife's divorce suit of possessing a Jekyll-Hyde personality.

Crowds flocked into Superior court to hear Ray, former treasurer of the New York State Christian Endeavor Society, defend himself against charges of misconduct with four women.

Ray is president of the Rogers Paper Manufacturing Co., in South Manchester, president of the Men's League of the Manchester Congregation and superitendent of the Sunday school. His wife, Mrs. Lera Ray of Foster st., South Manchester, testified they were happy until her husband met Mrs. Lillian Hand, while the Rays lived in Troy, N. Y. She charges that Ray went to Colorado with Mrs. Hand and remained from February until May, 1924.

Upon his return, a reconciliation followed and they were happy for a year, she says, until Ray met Mary Gallagher in New Haven.

TRAVEL-TOURS-HOTELS-RESORTS

LAKE VOYAGE OFFERS FINE VACATION

In these days when even the vacation must be concise, it has become quite the vogue to spend the time allotted to business people cruising on inland seas in elegant steamships, whose beautiful interiors and comfortable appointments rival ocean liners.

Such a cruise may be commenced at Buffalo, Detroit, Cleveland, Parry Sound, Canada; Mackinac Island, or Chicago. One cruise, in particular, featured by the Chicago, Duluth & Georgian Bay Transit Company, which owns and operates the Great White Liners, North American and South American, is more than 2000 miles in length. The itinerary includes a cruise over Lakes Michigan, Huron, Erie, St. Claire and St. Claire river.

Passengers who make this cruise are delighted at the unusual itinerary which takes them not only to "See America First," but into a foreign country as well, as the moment these liners cruise out of Lake Huron into Georgian Bay, the passengers have their first thrill of sailing under the British flag.

The steamships North American and South American, making this delightful week's cruise, accommodate 500 passengers, carry a staff of 150 employes, and burn oil for fuel, so that there is a complete absence of the smoke, soot and cinders usually prevalent in many modes of travel, to say nothing of the absence of dust of the roadways.

Cabins are well equipped to accommodate one, two or three passengers. Parlor rooms, equipped with double or twin beds, are available, single and en suite. A social hostess is carried to entertain the passengers; dancing and entertainment every evening; children's playground, where youngsters may romp under the surveillance of a trained attendant.

Stops are made daily, sometimes at one of the large cities, of which there are a number on the Great Lakes, again at a fashionable summer resort, another day at a quiet hamlet.

The fact that the comforts of a well equipped home or hotel are now available in the better lake going steamships is attracting thousands to spend their vacations in this restful, intriguing manner where in exchange for a minimum of effort and expense, a maximum of pleasure, rest and recreation may be secured.

Futher information regarding this cruise may be obtained by writing Travel Editor, Boston American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

EXCURSION TO QUEBEC SOON

An excursion to Quebec, conducted by the Boston & Maine Railroad, will leave North Station, Boston, at 8:25 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, on Friday, June 15; arriving in Quebec at 9:50 a. m. Saturday. The return trip will leave Quebec at 2:30 p. m. Monday, June 18, reaching Boston early Tuesday morning.

A wonderful opportunity is thus offered for a pleasant, inexpensive week-end trip to one of the oldest and most famous cities of North America. Whether one wishes to visit the many places of scenic and historic interest, or to spend the time with relatives or friends, it will be found to be a convenient and interesting excursion.

Both sections of the city—the Upper Town and the Lower Town—present endless attractions, and one of the most magnificent views in the world is that from the Citadel of Quebec. Ample time is available to visit the beautiful Montmorency Falls, 274 feet high, and the famous shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre. The entire district is particularly attractive at this season of the year.

For this excursion, the fare has been reduced to $12 for the round trip, children at half rate.

PROVINCETOWN LINE TO OPEN

The steamer Dorothy Bradford will open for the 1928 season with its first sailing on Saturday, June 16, from Boston to Provincetown. On that day Northeastern University will have its annual outing and about 400 students will go on the trip.

The boat leaves Long Wharf at 9:30 and arrives at Provincetown at 1:30. There is a two hour stop at Provincetown, which allows plenty of time for passengers to see the historic town, and to enjoy its quaint atmosphere. The docks, the houses, the streets and even the air seem different in Provincetown. The museum and the Pilgrims' bonument are only two of the many attractions . The steamer returns for Boston at 3:30 on week days and half an hour later on Sundays and holidays.

F. B. Crocker, who was for four years purser on the Dorothy Bradford, then manager for four years at which time he went into war work, is back again as general manager of this steamship line.

MOTORMAN AND COP HURT AS TROLLEY HITS TRUCK

In a collision between a Harvard sq. Elevated surface car and a motor truck at 6th and Cambridge sts., East Cambridge, Harold Buker, the motorman, and Police Sergeant Richard J. Linehan of station 3, Cambridge, were slightly hurt. After emergency treatment they went home.

The sergeant was a passenger on the surface car. The accident was due to the truck, owned by the Alden Spear Company and driven by B. G. Messenger, having skidded on wet pavement. About 1[illegible] passengers in the car were sh

GIANT LINER IN SERVICE SOON

The world's largest motorship, the Augustus, of the Navigazione Generale Italiana, is to be placed in the regular New York-Italy service beginning with September 15, according to an announcement of the Italia-America Shipping Corp., agents for the line in this country. The new liner is commanded by Capt. A. Tarabotto.

Besides being the world's largest motorship, the Augustus is the largest Italian liner afloat. Whatever course events may take, it will be a few years before a motorship larger than the Augustus is placed in service, for at the present time there is no vessel under construction equipped with internal combustion machinery of such size.

The Augustus is of a gross tonnage of 32,650, being slightly greater than the Roma of the same line, is 710 feet long with a beam of 82½ feet. The Diesel motor equipment which is the most powerful ever installed in a vessel includes main and auxiliary motors capable of developing a total of 42,600 horsepower.

There are four classes on the Augustus, first, second, second intermediate, and third, and each in its own way achieves the utmost in comfort and luxury. The ship's population of 2700 persons is comfortably distributed throughout its eight decks.

B. & A. ISSUES CITY GUIDE LEAFLET

The Boston & Albany Railroad has just issued a new folder in colors which is a handsome and artistic speciment of printing. It is a map and guide of Boston.

Taking Dewey sq., Boston, opposite the main entrance to the South Station, as a central point, the map shows, on a scale of 800 feet to the inch, all the city proper, parts of South Boston, East Boston, Charlestown and Cambridge, and on the south as far out as Jersey st. in the Back Bay Fens, a little more than two and one-quarter miles from Dewey sq.

The map shows 12 half-tone reproductions of historical buildings and sites in and around Boston, as well as Albany, N. Y., Springfield, Worcester, scenes in the Berkshires, along the Westfield river, and on the Charles river at Watertown.

A copy may be secured by enclosing 2 cents in stamps to the Travel Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

SAYS FISHING IS FINE IN CANADA

Fishing is great in Canadian streams and rivers, according to letter received by T. E. P. Pringle, general agent of the Canadian National Railways at Boston, from Arthur Tremblay of La Tuque, in connection with his fishing party.

The following is an extract from Mr. Tremblay's letter:

"On May 24th, six of us left Boston for a little fishing in a territory which was entirely strange to us. All had spent many seasons in the Maine woods for salmon, trout and togue. The fascination of the Canadian North brought us here. After two days of poor luck, because of rain and high water, we have enjoyed today the best fishing in our experience. We do not care to say how many we caught—all trout, from three quarters of a pound to two pounds, but we are certain that if there is a Canadian limit we su'e exceeded it. Our camp is beautifully situated, the accommodation comparable with its location, and we are all very happy to have discovered this place.

The above is good proof that "Fishing in Canada" ranks ace-high amongst sport activities in Canadian limits.

ELKS PLAN TRIP TO MIAMI

Great preparation is now being made for a large attendance of Elks at the grand lodge session and reunion to Miami, Fla., July 9 to 12. The hotels are offering very reasonable rates and the rail and steamer lines are also making very attractive excursion rates and doing everything they can to feature this convention.

The all-New England tour is under the personal direction of John D. Shea, P. E. R. V., P. D. D., of Hartford, Conn. The party goes by steamer from New York to Jacksonville, a restful sea trip, and thence over the road leisurely in de luxes motor coaches, visiting the principal East Coast resorts, such as Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Daytona Beach, Palm Beach and Miami; returning by steamer from Miami to New York.

It is claimed that it is not so hot at this season of the year at the waterfront hotels in Miami as it is in many of our inland New England cities. The tour includes outside staterooms on steamer, best hotels, meals and liberal sightseeing at a moderate cost.

A special itinerary may be secured from John D. Shea, 3 Calumet st., Wollaston; Thomas J. Brady, 45 Summer st., Boston, or Stewart A. Colpitts, 262 Washington st.

Guide to Shrines Is Given in Booklet

Gordon C. Fletcher, passenger agent of the Canadian Steamship Lines, announces that a new booklet describing the shrines of St. Lawrence has been published and now is ready for distribution.

The booklet describes in detail the shrines of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, Dap de la Madeline, St. Joseph's Oratory and the Chapel of Perpetual Adoration.

Readers may obtain a copy of this booklet free of charge by writing Travel Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston.

New School Bridge

Concord, N. H., June 7—A stone arch bridge, the gift of Samuel Morris of Philadelphia, was dedicated at St. Paul's school, marking the opening of the observance of the 72d anniversary of the school. Mr. Morris gave the bridge as a memorial to his wife.

TRAIN CONTROL IS SAFEGUARD

All Chicago and Northwestern passenger and freight trains on the main line between Chicago and Omaha are operated under an invisible master control which is automatic. This control safeguards the movement of all trains and provides engineers with constant check as to speed and the conditions of the track ahead.

The train control system allows the engineer to operate a passenger train no faster than 70 miles an hour and a freight train 50 miles an hour at any time if the track is clear. Should he under these conditions approach too closely to a train or other restricting conditions ahead, or if another train approaches too closely to his train, this invisible guardian—the automatic train control system—will change a light in the cab of the approaching train.

Immediately the engineer must acknowledge this condition which will stop one of the horns. He must reduce the speed of his train to below 20 miles an hour, otherwise the brakes will be automatically applied and the train stopped. The second horn continues to sound until the speed of the train is sufficiently reduced.

FURNESS LINE'S SEASON OPEN

The summer schedule of the Furness Line opened with the sailing of the S.S. Newfoundland Tuesday with a heavy passenger booking. The ship is due to arrive in Liverpool on June 18, stopping at Halifax, N. S., and St. John's, N. F. Other sailings will take place at frequent intervals during the season.

The Furness Line has prepared to accommodate a large influx of tourists to Newfoundland this season, as the popularity of this newly discovered vacation land increases year by year. Fishing is reported to be excellent on the island, and other vacation activities hold equal attractions for the summer tourist.

Advertise Your Wants in the Boston Evening American

Every family in New England is eligible for the Boston Evening American's remarkable offer of safety and protection!

$10,000 ACCIDENT INSURANCE POLICY AT ONLY $1 Nothing More to Pay!

Play Safe!

Accidents Will Happen

Are You Protected?

DETERMINED to impress SAFETY on the minds of every family in New England and to fight death and injury through accident or carelessness, the Boston Evening American has undertaken a great public service.

Accidents always seem to happen to those least expecting them and yet scarcely 2% of those killed or injured through accident have made any preparations at all for their dependents. The Boston Evening American believes that no man continually subjecting himself to accident in modern daily life has any right to leave his family unprotected.

We have therefore arranged to distribute one million $10,000 accident insurance policies to the people of New England at ONE DOLLAR as a step further in our campaign for public safety.

Leaders in New England's civic and business life have heartily endorsed the Boston Evening American's plan to protect every family in New England against privation and want due to the injury or loss of the head of the family through accident.

This is an out-and-out offer to provide the most liberal ironclad insurance policy we have been able to discover. You pay not one cent more than $1 for your policy. Every cent of this dollar goes to the insurance company. The Boston Evening American bears all additional expenses.

Play safe! Take advantage of it! Protect your dependents; it is your solemn duty. To get this policy all you have to do is fill out the coupon and send it to the Boston Evening American with your registration fee of $1.00. Do it now, before you turn this page.

Twenty-three persons are accidentally injured every minute; 7,000 passengers and employes are killed yearly in railroad accidents; automobiles kill 26,800 persons every year. Don't gamble with the welfare of your family. Protect yourself and protect them through this remarkable offer which is brought to you through the great facilities of the Boston Evening American.

Prevention and Cure

The Boston Evening American has at all times been a staunch campaigner for public safety. But regardless of how intensive the course in public safety that is presented to a reader audience—accidents are bound to happen. It is to combat the consequences of these accidents to the family and home of the injured person that the Boston Evening American makes this remarkable offer of safety and protection. It is for YOUR benefit. Take advantage of it.

This Is the Coupon That Brings You Safety, Protection and Peace of Mind for $1.00

MORROW SILENT ON MEXICAN PEACE PLAN

New York, June 7—A settlement of difficulties between the Mexican Government and the Roman Catholic Church is in sight.

Dwight W. Morrow, United States Ambassador to Mexico, who is here on leave, declined to make any comment either on the situation in general or upon the negotiations which Archbishop Leopold Ruiz of Michoacan is reported to be conducting between the Calles Government in Mexico and the Roman Catholic Church.

For months unofficial negotiations have been in progress between President Calles and representatives of the Roman Catholic Church some of whom have been permitted to visit Mexico. Morrow used his good offices in a purely personal way toward bringing the opposing factions together for negotiations.

Announcement that a settlement of the religious troubles in Mexico is nearing an end are premature it can be stated, as a plan even having the approval of President Calles must be approved also by the Pope.

Even the outcome of Archbishop Ruiz conferences with the Holy Father is still unknown, and as matters stand, about all that can be said with definiteness is that negotiations are underway.

Although Archbishop Ruiz is an exile from Mexico along with other church dignitaries, he was permitted to make a secret visit to Mexico, and discussed church problems with President Calles.

PASSES UP FORTUNE TO LIVE IN LONDON

New York, June 7 (INS)—Today found Francis Taylor of the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company, London, the loser of a heritage said to be worth millions as a result of his desire to remain in London instead of making his home in New York as his father wished. The reading of the will of his father, the late Moses Taylor, banker, disclosed a distribution of the estate to other members of the family far in excess of that to be received by him.

It is understood a "misunderstanding" occurred between father and son over the latter's decision to found his home and career in London.

The WOLF-MAN of PARIS

BY RAFAEL SABATINI
Author of
"SCARAMOUCHE,"
"THE SEA HAWK," "CAPTAIN BLOOD," ETC.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN
A HOME PAPER FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK
SECOND SECTION
BOSTON, THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1928

MRS. BAILEY TO FIGHT D.A.R

A Story of Love and the French Revolution

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHAUVINIERE, an elegant, arrogant deputy in the French Revolution, has saved Cleonie de Montsorbier from the guillotine under pretence that she is insane. He visits her in a prison hospital and tells her he will have her removed to a madhouse, where man's attire will be procured for her, and that she will join him as his secretary on a tour of inspections of Nivernais. When they are far from Paris, she will go free. He leaves without waiting for her answer. The young noblewoman is torn between fear of death and mistrust of the courteous young man, who has taken such an unprovoked interest in her.

[RAFAEL SABATINI is author of "Scaramouche," "Captain Blood" and other famous stories. The serial now running here appeared originally under the title "The Nuptials of Corbal."]

CHAPTER IV

THAT night from the height of the tribune in the hall of convention, Chauviniere inveighed furiously against the prison system and the state of things he had found in the overcrowded prison hospital of the Archeveche. He was superb in his audacity, fulminating in his irony, which spared none of those responsible, nor hesitated to indict even the minister of justice, Camille Desmoulins. He claimed to speak in the name of humanity, consumed by the fire of a just and righteous indignation.

A deputy from the lower Loire ventured to interrupt him with a gibe that drew some laughter from the crowded assembly.

"Monsieur the President, will you permit this man to continue his monstrous [illegible] of [illegible] for aristocrats?"

Chauviniere, standing very straight and looking very tall, his black head thrown back, his fine hands resting one on either side of his plumed hat, on the ledge of the rostrum, stamped out at once the sparks of that spluttering [illegible].

"Aristocrats!" His voice broke about the heads of the deputies like a peal of thunder, and again: "Aristocrats?"

The silence was instantaneous. His indignant questioning outcry had caught their attention. He paused now, and his sardonic, imperious glance sought out that daring fellow from the Loire, and riveted him. He knew the value of suspense, and for a long moment he held them in it. Then he loosed his answer:

"In a Nation of free men, Justice, citizens, should at once be inexorable, blind and undiscriminating. She can admit neither prejudice nor preconception, for these, indeed, are the negation of Justice. In her divine eyes, which the ancients in their wisdom symbolically bandaged, there are neither aristocrats nor plebeians, but only accused. And lest Justice err in her findings—a danger revolting to enlightened men in this Age of Reason—she must presume the accused to be innocent until her own sifting of the evidence constrains her to convict them."

Applause rolled in volleys down that long hall.

Chauviniere, who knew so well the power of words and how to wield them, knew also the value of dramatic pose. He remained now calm, precise, unmoved: the complete patriot with a duty to perform, who himself was nothing. No longer did his eyes seek out his erstwhile interrupter, lest he be suspected of gloating over the man's discomfiture. He did not even perceive—at least he did not return—the approving smile of the deputy for Arras, that notorious humanitarian, the frail and livid Maximilien Robespierre, who removed one of the two pairs of glasses from his uptilted nose to beam upon the vehement tenant of the tribune.

After that the success of his advocacy was no longer in any doubt. His demand that as a commencement of reform the mental cases should instantly be removed from

7 SENTENCED TO DEATH FOR MASSACREING BRITONS

Tulagi, Solomon Islands, June 7 (AP)—Sentence of death has been passed on seven natives charged with complicity in the murder of District Commissioner Bell, Cadet Lillies and 15 of the crew of the British steamer Auk in a massacre at Sinarango last autumn. The trials, just concluded, brought also sentences of life imprisonment for three others and sentences of from 10 to 20 years' imprisonment for 13 more. Fifty were acquitted. Thirteen died in jail through lack of exercise, worry and unaccustomed diet.

TRAMP BARBER FACES DEATH

Salem, June 7 (AP)—Dist. Atty. William G. Clark of Essex County announced today he would ask imposition of the death sentence upon George E. H. Taylor, tramp barber, convicted of killing Miss Stella Pomikala of Lawrence at Salisbury Beach last June in superior court here Saturday.

Taylor was convicted of murder in the first degree last October. His counsel appealed to the Supreme Court on a writ of error which was overruled and then announced a motion for a new trial on the grounds of new evidence would be filed. The motion has not been filed yet.

Miss Pomikala was employed as a photographer's assistant at Salisbury Beach. On the morning of June 6, last year, her body was found on the beach and later Taylor was arrested in New Hampshire after having been traced through the sale of the girl's watch.

SEEKS MORE SIGNERS ON BASEBALL REFERENDUM

Fred G. Doe of New Bedford, one of the original signers to the initiative petition for legalizing Sunday baseball and other sports, today took out blanks from the office of the Secretary of State for the additional 5000 signatures required to place the question on the ballot in November election. The petition was refused enactment in the Senate recently by a vote of [illegible] to 9 and in the House by a vote of 110 to 93.

Mill On Short Time

Whitinsville, June 7 (AP)—The Whitin Brothers Company, Inc., of Linwood announced today the plant would operate four days a week until further notice. The company manufactures cotton goods and has been running overtime. Between 300 and 400 employes are affected.

NEW LAW ON SHELLFISH PROTECTS HEALTH

Dr. P. H. Mullowney

Director, Hearst Health Laboratory

A long step toward the prevention of typhoid fever will be taken July 27, when the new law regulating the transporting of shellfish into Massachusetts will go into effect.

Shellfish taken from polluted areas may contain enormous numbers of bacteria, and their consumption by the public constitutes one of the greatest menaces to health.

Dr Mullowney

After July 27, it will be illegal for a person to ship into this Commonwealth shellfish dug outside the State unless certain formalities have been met.

First there must be filed a paper with the department of public health, coming from officials of the outside point, stating that the grounds from which the shellfish are taken are free from contamination. With this is a similar paper from the same source, asserting that the establishment and equipment of the shipper is in good sanitary condition.

TRADE IS REGULATED

Provision is made for regulation of the trade by the department of public health consistent with the rules and regulations governing interstate commerce. Penalties of fine and imprisonment are also provided for.

It is to be hoped that the effect of this new legislation will be to wipe out or limit any menace to the health of the public.

The principal evils in connection with the shellfish trade are contamination and adulteration of the product by adding water.

Shellfish from polluted areas, for example where sewage is present, many contain enormous numbers of bacteria, including the colon bacillus and the bacteria which cause typhoid fever and dysentery.

As much of the shellfish is consumed without any sterilizing

Rock Salt Pellets Used in Hunt for "Peeping Tom"

Kennebunkport, Me., June 7—Residents of the summer colony here are perturbed by the appearance of a "Peeping Tom" in the neighborhood. Servants of Booth Tarkington, the author, discovered a man peeping through the windows of the Tarkington home at a late hour and pursued him fruitlessly.

The summer residents have organized a rock salt club for the purchase and distribution of shotgun shells loaded with rock salt pellets.

Sonnenberg Tackles Swedish Giant at Arena Tonight

DYNAMITE TO FORCE BATTLE

Conqueror of McLeod Confident He Will Defeat Sonnenberg

By JACK CONWAY

GUS SONNENBERG, former Dartmouth all-American football tackle, will once more attempt what the experts consider the impossible when he will try to defeat John Frieberg, Swedish grappler, in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Arena tonight.

Frieberg rates with the world's leading mat men. He has scored 53 straight victories and is of the opinion [illegible] Sonnenberg [illegible] any-body [illegible].

[illegible] feats [illegible] list of accomplishments.

Last week in Chicago he [illegible] Wayne Munn in four [illegible].

He then hurried to Boston [illegible] Farmer [illegible] McLean inside of 50 minutes.

Jack Conway

He [illegible] off [illegible] in 15 minutes.

He made mince [illegible] of [illegible] Stenke in a bout in a New York gym, taking just seven minutes to toss the man rated by the New York Athletic Commission as the leading challenger for a tussle with Strangler Lewis.

The Swedish champion is six feet [illegible] weighs [illegible] pounds [illegible] experience and skill to make the best of them [illegible] only natural that Frieberg [illegible] installed a [illegible] favorite for tonight's contest.

THE college world will once more back Sonnenberg to win. The former Dartmouth hero has [illegible] 33 matches in a row and he [illegible] he can tip over Frieberg or anybody else.

Sonnenberg is expected to use his usual [illegible] he knows about scientific wrestling.

Sonnenberg [illegible] Frank Bruno from [illegible] of the mat [illegible] other in [illegible] and finally [illegible] for the [illegible] in 21 minutes, [illegible] matches [illegible] to travel more than [illegible] to pin an opponent's shoulders to the canvas.

It was his final tune-up for Frieberg.

THE preliminary card measures [illegible] Bowser [illegible] will be [illegible] event [illegible] Professor Arthur Davis, former [illegible] of wrestling at [illegible]. In the other preliminary events Stanley Stasiak, king of rough house, will [illegible] Karl Sarpolis of Chicago. Harry Stevens, the American [illegible], will face Joe DeVito, sensational young Italian from Providence. [illegible] Hansen will [illegible] and Joe "[illegible]" Komar will meet John Spellman, former all-American center at [illegible].

Leo [illegible], local referee, has been chosen to referee the main bout.

Waal, I Swan! Lloyd Hahn's Gone

Falls City, Neb., June 7 (AP)—Lloyd Hahn, who runs, is Falls City's first citizen and paradox [illegible] the most difficult person here to keep track of.

Hahn had been here for some time and the townspeople thought he still was in the home town until they read press dispatches yesterday relating that he is in Boston, getting conditioned for the Olympics.

MRS. BAKER RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF GOLF ASSN.

Montclair, N. J., June 7—Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., of Oakley, was re-elected president of the Women's Eastern Golf Association at the annual meeting held here today. Mrs. Frank Enos of Englewood, N. J., was chosen vice-president; Mrs. John D. Woodfin of Cambridge, Mass., secretary, and Mrs. G. Stetson of Philadelphia treasurer.

READY TO GO AT GUS

SONNY TACKLES TOUGH FOE

Joe Frieberg, shown above, has tossed some of the best of the present crop of matmen. George McLeod fell before his mighty holds. He is well over six feet and weighs 235 pounds. That is a big combination for anyone to handle. Especially Gus Sonnenberg, who is not nearly as large. If Gus can pin a defeat on his giant opponent he should get a shot at the title.

RED SOX OPEN TODAY WITH DETROIT

Detroit, June 7—The Red Sox will play the first game of their scheduled series with the Tigers here today. Yesterday the rain gave the Carriganites another 24 hours of enforced idleness, which didn't please the manager a bit.

However, any one of the hurlers is ready to go now, and Morris will be the probable choice to toss. Ruffing, Harriss, and Russell can go on the mound for the Sox in order now so the team may be able to start off on another winning streak, with its pitching staff well fortified by layoff of the past few games.

173 Yale Athletes Win Awards

New Haven, June 6—One hundred and seventy-three Yale athletes were honored today by the board of control of the Yale Athletic Association, which granted letters and other insignia to them for having competed as members of various teams in the spring season.

The major Y was awarded only to the members of the track team, 31 track stars, Hunt Eldredge, manager, and Ar[illegible] K[illegible], assistant manager, being given Yale's highest athletic award.

Members of the varsity lacrosse and tennis teams, varsity 150-pound crew, junior varsity baseball team, freshman track and lacrosse teams and the sophomore class track team received awards upon recommendation of the undergraduate athletic association.

The minor emblem of a championship team was awarded the members of the university lacrosse team which defeated both Harvard and Princeton.

GRAY'S SEND JIMMY MUNROE TO LEWISTON

Providence, June 7—Jimmy Munroe, utility outfielder of the Grays, has been sent to Lewiston of the New England League on option. He left for the Maine city this morning.

CHERISHED TROPHY

WHAT A DRINK THIS WOULD HOLD

T. P. Parkins is holding the British Amateur golf championship prize, which he won recently at the Prestwick links. The new champ beat out Roger Wethered in the finals of the tourney. This cup is one of the most highly prized awards in the golfing world. Particularly in the home of the ancient and honorable pastime. Perkins' victory smile should stick for awhile now.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"I'M going up to the Arena tonight to get a line on Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, who tackles John Frieberg in a finish bout," said Mr. Boston as he helloed the gang today.

"Any bird who can tip over 33 opponents in a row must have something more than a desire to win. As Frieberg has 53 straight victories to his credit, he has the class necessary to give the former Dartmouth football star a real test.

"Take a peek at the crowd at the Arena tonight and you will realize what Sonnenberg has done for the wrestling game. He has brought out new fans. Followers of college football and hockey are now regular patrons of Paul Bowser's wrestling shows.

"Joe Alvarez tells me that since Sonny started his winning drive that thousands of fight fans have been taking in the wrestling shows. They always come back, Alvarez declared. The wrestlers have a habit of giving action which is quite a treat for the boys who clutter up the ringside seats. My tip to the boxing promoters is to look out for the wrestling advance. It is seriously cutting into their racket all because the cash customers get something for their money."

MATCHMAKER EDDIE MACK came in from the Argonne front to say a few words about the box fight situation.

"Carroll and Valenti almost carried my office away when they signed for the Finnegan-Fuller bout," chirped Eddie. "Imagine those birds blackjacking me for 60 per cent of the dough. I planned to give 50 per cent for the bout. Bob McKirdy then went after the match, and rather than let him get it I raised my bid to 60 per cent.

"I don't think a promoter can afford to pay 60 per cent for any match that goes into a ball park, but I was obliged to go that high to keep Finnegan and Fuller from going over to some other club.

"I signed the bout for June 25, but Carroll now tells me he wants the match set back until July 2 as he has Finnegan battling Johnny Jadick in Philadelphia on June 18. He doesn't want to have Honeyboy step in with a tough fellow like Fuller seven days later.

"The Finnegan-Jadick bout is on the same card with Bass and Nebo. Gunnis & Taylor are paying Finnegan $3500 and I don't blame him for not wishing to pass up this much sugar.

"I've put the Maloney-DeMave bout back until next Monday night. Those birds who are offering 4 to 1 on Maloney are daffy. The bout does not rate such big odds. DeMave has stepped along with Sharkey, Heeney and Renault and nobody has yet knocked him out. He has been boxing steadily, while Maloney has been idle a great deal. All I ask are a few days of sunshine so as to get the cash customers thawed out. Postponements ruin a promoter's bank roll.

"If Maloney wins, he steps in with Roberto Roberti. I originally planned this bout for June 18, but with all of these postponements I may have to set it back until a later date."

JOE JACOBS, manager of DeMave, called on the telephone to say he was on his way back to New York, but that he would breeze into town again Monday. DeMave will remain here and will do some training at Toland's gym.

"The weather man has sure kayoed outdoor boxing," sighed Mr. Boston.

NAME KENNEY REFEREE

William P. Kenney, president of the N. E. A. A. U., has been selected by the committee to referee the annual Fitzgerald 10-mile open handicap cross country run arranged by Pere Marquette Council K. of C., June 23.

The event will start at the council building continuing on to Franklin Park and return. The finish will be at the C. J. Lee playgrounds. Sixteen beautiful prizes will be given also a solid gold Waltham watch as a time prize.

A special prize will be given to the first South Boston boy to finish who does not qualify for a regular prize.

Some of the early entries include Martin Silver, the old Waltham A. A. star who finished fourth in 1920 and sixth in 1922 in the former council ten mile events.

Frank McGrath, B. A. A., will be the clerk of course while Charles F. Leahy, South Boston council K. of C. has been appointed assistant.

HARVARD PLAYS RHODY TODAY

Harvard will face Rhode Island State this afternoon at Soldiers Field. A very muddy playing surface ruined any chance of playing the regular game and a mutual agreement between both the colleges makes possible a second try today.

Mitchell will send Howie Whitmore, new pitching find, against the small State team, reserving Frank Cutts and Jack Barbee for the game with the Irishmen.

There will be three new faces in the Crimson lists this afternoon. Ralph Sullivan will return to the shortfield with Cutts and Whitney patroling the left and right field sectors respectively.

The coach plans to insert plenty of right-handed hitting into his team. The nine will have five normal batters today, as compared to the left-handed socking list of no less than seven players.

Tony Plansky in Melrose Meet

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Close to 200 entries have been received by Manager Tom Kanaly of the B. A. A. for the New England Olympic tryouts which are to be staged on Saturday afternoon at the Melrose Athletic Field at 2:30 o'clock.

The pick of the college, school and club stars of New England are entered.

Numbered among the leading performers will be Tony Plansky of the St. Alphonsus A. A., Al Miller, former Harvard star athlete; Luke McCloskey, formerly of B. C.; Charley Finn, Somerville star athlete, and Eagle Freshman; Paul Toolin, N. E. Intercollegiate 120-yard low hurdle champ.

Hal Cutbill, the "Flying Parson"; Bob Dalrymple, B. A. A.; Leo Lermond, B. A. A.; his brother, George, who is on a 12 weeks' furlough from West Point; McCauley Smith, former Yale athlete of note, and many others will compete.

Sixteen events are listed from the 100 meters to the 10,000-metre run, with all the field events of the Olympic games on tap. It is expected that many of the college stars will be in their finest shape for attacking the present day records in the different events.

Of the winners, the committee, headed by Albert Geiger, chairman of the Track and Field Championship Committee, will select a group to enter the final Olympic tryouts at the Harvard Stadium on July 6 and 7.

In the 100 and 200 meters events, the following group of athletes are to run: Al Miller, Charley Finn, Jim Daley of Holy Cross, R. F. Atkins, B. A. A.; George Morin, H. C. Freshman and W. F. Reppetto of Northeastern.

Paul Toolin, New England Intercollegiate champion hurdler, is down to compete in the 400 meters race, with Frankie Burns, R. F. Atkins, New England 440-yard champion; Vincent Hennessey of Brookline and Harvard, and F. E. Cummings of the B. A. A.

In the 800 meters, Luke McCluskey, Sam Martin and G. G. Felt of Amherst are the outstanding entries. Added to these will be Robert P. Porter of Harvard, winner of the half mile in the Harvard-Yale meet this spring, and Charles Thompson.

A classy field will toe the mark in the 5000 meters run. Leo Lermond and McCauley Smith should put up a good fight. William S. Benedict of Univ. New Hampshire State, Alfred Francis, Dave Kneeland, Jr., and Danna C. Hutchinson, Dorchester Club, are also among the entries.

The 10,000 meters event will bring out Dalrymple, McCauley Smith, Robert Hickey of Tufts, William T. Simmons, George Dodge, Charles Cahill and Frank Blechinder, Dorchester Club; George Lermond and Francis J. Howard.

In the 110 meters hurdles, Fletcher Hodgers, Harvard, Paul B. Toolin, B. A. A., Earl McDonald, Holy Cross captain, William J. Hendrick, Harvard, and Bernard Lucas, Bowdoin, are the most prominent in the field.

Ned Gourdin, former Harvard athlete, will attempt a comeback in the broad jump. Pitted against Gourdin will be D. White, Tony Plansky, Fred Dunlap, B. A. A., and Albert Rogan, B. A. A.

Rogan, P. S. Benjamin of Tech, A. W. Morang of Northeastern, Earl McDonald and Otis Kendall, New England champion, will also compete.

Rogan will also compete in the pole vault with Harry Devau and Roy Hobson of the University of Maine. Charlie Pratt of Harvard has sent in his entry for the shotput, along with that of Dave Guarnaccia, Harvard, Edward Flanagan, Holy Cross, and Erwin Beech, captain of Boston College.

Beech, Flanagan and John Lawler of the B. A. A. and James Amedo of Lowell are all entered in the hammer throw. The javelin will find Plansky, Arthur Sager, New England champion, Phil Hamilton, and J. R. Barrett competing.

Apelle Wins Coronation Cup

Epsom, England, June 6 (AP)—The Coronation cup, a sweepstake over the Derby course, about a mile and a half, was won today by F. McCreery's five-year-old colt Apelle by a short head from Mrs. C. Rich's Silverstead. Lord Astor's Brook Law was third, two lengths back.

Four horses ran.

Bush Claims Pirates Now Ready to Go After Pennant

DONIE SAYS BRAVES ARE COMERS

Greenfield to Pitch Opener; Teams in Dual Bill Saturday

By NICK FLATLEY

THE baseball boys will be advertising for web-footed athletes pretty soon. The dampest spring in history has piled up doubleheaders so fast that the bargain bills will be put on from here in just as soon as there's a bright day, if any. The Braves and Pirates will try to play today, and they will also attempt to tuck yesterday's washout into a double bill Saturday.

It was the custom to put on all two-in-one affairs until the second trip of a club to a city, but like everything else that idea is a wet this year. Two games with the Corsairs will give the Boston fans a good week-end and if things go well may help the Braves into sixth place.

Nick Flatley

Manager Donie Bush of the [illegible] admits that his team has been in terrible shape but he can see light ahead.

"We won't be down near the cellar long," he declares. "We have had more injuries than a front line combat division during the war. Our pitchers have been hurt or sick and our catching staff was wrecked. These things with a few other regulars on the shelf almost dropped us out of the league.

"The gang is coming along now and I expect that we will get going as champions should on this trip. Grimes and [illegible] have been our only consistent pitchers, but I believe Kremer is set to step along now and that will hoist the club rapidly. For Ray is one of the greatest of them all.

"I know there will be no [illegible] picking with these Braves. Hornsby is a driver and has a [illegible] powerful ball club. His pitching isn't so much, but he'll dig some up somehow. He's a go-getter and is certainly setting a wild pace with that club of his. A consistent 400 hitter is as good as a couple of pitchers to any ball club."

RUMORS of Brave trades come seeping in from all parts of the country. That shows what the experts around the land think of the Hornsby initiative and drive. The Rajah has made propositions to every club in the league and isn't the least bit bashful about asking for stars. He figures that he may hit one target in half a dozen shots and just about three bullseyes will give him a ball club.

The story that Thevenow [illegible] come from St. Louis persists. Tommy was given a chance to [illegible] in '26 and [illegible] a whale of a year. He was a big part of the Cardinal championship picture. This [illegible] star cracked an ankle last spring, if memory serves, and he hasn't done much regular playing since.

His absence cost the Cards the pennant in the last campaign. The weak leg went bad again this year and Rabbit Maranville has been doing most of the Card shortstopping. The Rabbit is still a part of a marvel, but he isn't as young as he used to be. Thevenow, according to reports, is ready to go to work again.

Hornsby would like to get him but the Cards will demand a lot in exchange. The Rajah will not make any trade unless he knows the athlete he gets is in shape. Any Thevenow deal would have to include Dr. Eddie Farrell and this young man is rated at as high a price as any youngster in the show.

The Cards are in the middle of the pennant fight and may be willing to do some quick shifting to get sturdy regulars in place of fragile ones, who may crack during the drive. It is difficult to figure how a star like Thevenow could be traded, but the acquisition of Bell seemed just as impossible. Yet Lester is here, very much so, as those who watched him hit last Saturday will testify.

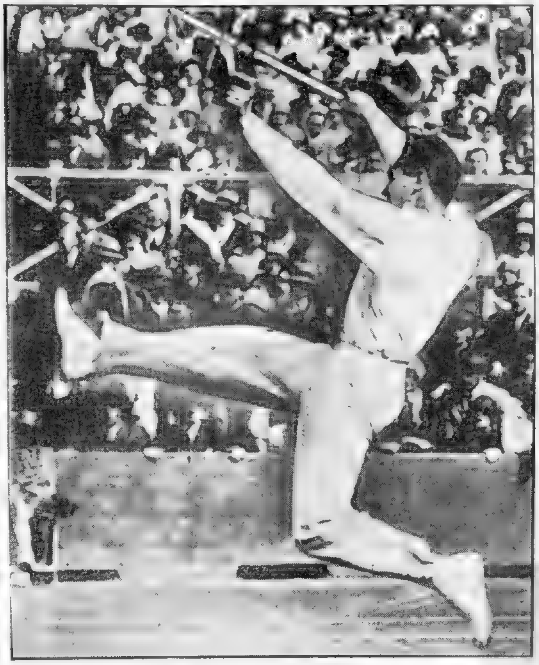
THESE rainy days cause stories to sprout where no seed has been sown. That other old one about the transfer of a National League franchise to Detroit came up after two days of countrywide showers. Both the Phils and the Cards were mentioned as possible invaders of the automobile village. Several very good reasons make this appear to be plain applesauce and nothing else but.

The St. Louis Cardinals are a money making club, have a chance for the pennant this year and would never be permitted to escape from the excitable western city. The Phils, last placers and all, make some gold each year. The club [illegible] salary list [illegible] the upkeep of the bandbox [illegible], and with star players such as [illegible] are generally sold for big sums. The N. L. would never [illegible] a tail end club in a city like Detroit.

Furthermore, the removal of a franchise requires, besides the unanimous consent of the National owners, a majority vote of the A. L. magnates. Detroit is a great money making spot, and the magnates in the league are not going to run any risk of losing out on the big selections.

One more bad day and we will have with us the new Federal League and the player strike. Incidentally, Kent Greenfield will go to the mound against the Pirates this p. m.

DRIVING ONE PAST TEAMMATE



BEATS OUT HIS BUDDY

Jacques Brugnon, veteran of the French tennis team, recently defeated the Bounding Basque, Jean Borotra, for the singles championship. The acrobatic pose shown above is characteristic of the slashing game the Frenchman plays. He will be an important member of the great Davis Cup team of France. The American contenders will prove hard for the Gallic group to down, however.

Ed Walsh Will Pitch Against B. C. Today

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

Notre Dame's baseball team will visit Boston for the first time in its history today to meet Boston College at Alumni Field. The nine from the far-famed college in South Bend, Ind., will present one of the best ball clubs of the West in their initial appearance in the Hub.

The fighting Irish have won 20 of 25 games played. Included among their victims are some of the outstanding teams on the other side of the Mississippi. The five games that were dropped were all lost while the team was traveling.

Notre Dame has always [illegible] a good [illegible] will [illegible] its share of the glamour. The sons of Big Ed Walsh, of the Chicago [illegible], Johnny Sullivan, son of Walsh's battery mate, and Johnny Niemiec, grid star, will be in the South Bend lineup.

It is possible that Ed Walsh, Jr., will pitch against Boston College. He is the leading twirler on the club and has been a mainstay for two seasons. Walsh was to have pitched against Holy Cross yesterday but the game was called off.

Ed has a great build for a moundsman and packs plenty of speed in to his offerings. He is going with the Chicago White Sox after graduation this spring and from all reports he has a fine chance to make the grade.

Bob Walsh, another son, who is a sophomore at the Irish college, is also a pitcher. He's not quite as good as his older brother but he gives promise of approaching Ed's form by the time he reaches his senior year.

Johnny Sullivan, son of Billy Sullivan, plays second for Notre Dame. Johnny prepped with Ed Walsh at [illegible] and has been his roommate during the four years at Notre Dame.

Johnny Niemiec, who was Christy Flanagan's running mate in Knute Rockne's backfield last fall, plays third base. Niemiec is rated as one of the best infielders ever at Notre Dame and bats well.

Boston College's team is waiting for the invasion of the South Benders intent on starting relations with a victory. Boston College's game with Providence was called off yesterday, which proved a good break for the Eagles.

[illegible] Shea will be in trim to pitch against Notre Dame and Hugh McNulty will be saved for the Holy Cross game at Fenway on Saturday. Shea has been twirling in great form since his return to the Heights after getting injured in the Dartmouth game.

It looks like a good ball game at the Heights with two of the outstanding Catholic college nines in the country crossing bats and two fine pitchers looking up in what looms as a mound duel.

Coach Hugh Duffy is anxious to have his boys win today. With the Holy Cross game just two days away the Eagles need some sort of encouragement to put them in the right mental state for the second clash with the Purple.

CHURCH CUP TEAMS NAMED

The makeup of the New York and Boston teams in the Church Cup tennis series, which starts tomorrow on the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club at Chestnut Hill, have been [illegible].

The roster of the [illegible] team, which is to be headed by R. Norris Williams, [illegible] champion, has not been forwarded to the committee of the [illegible] Cricket Club. [illegible] against New York [illegible] afternoon and on Saturday [illegible].

[illegible] known the [illegible] New York has a strong team, with [illegible] Van Ryn and Kenneth Appel [illegible] Princeton stars [illegible] and Watson M. Washburn [illegible] nationalist, Dr. George King, one of the ranking players of the Metropolitan district, E. T. Herndon, an ex-Princeton player, and F. W. Feibleman, who once represented Harvard.

The Boston team's first five players have been [illegible] but today [illegible] the sixth man [illegible] Howe, Jr., [illegible] Brookes Fenno, Jr., and [illegible] Niles [illegible] play in singles. Lawrence [illegible] twice [illegible] champion, [illegible] Harte, [illegible] Coast Champion [illegible] Herd H. Whitbeck, Jr., [illegible] T. H. [illegible] Harvard [illegible] who [illegible] singles, along up at that [illegible].

Fairbanks Will Manage Hub Garden

Sheldon H. Fairbanks, former newspaper editor [illegible] manager of various [illegible] [illegible] New York [illegible] position [illegible] the New [illegible] Bridgewater [illegible].

The appointment was the first definite move toward the general running of the Garden. The appointment of Eddie Mack or Alex McLean is expected any day now as matchmaker for the boxing shows of the new palace of sport.

The Garden was probably open for the first time in the latter part of October. Every kind of affair run at the new Garden will be under the direction of Mr. Fairbanks.

Fairbanks is well known in Boston. He was noted as an athlete in his school days at [illegible]. Later he became manager of the United Press association in New England, and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of Boston, [illegible] and many ex[illegible] city.

Short Cut to Better Baking Described by Martha Lee

DO you remember the Snicker [illegible] that we made in the Martha Lee kitchen last week? [illegible] you do you remember we [illegible]

Martha Lee

[illegible] keep to perfection in them.

Remember this, that in the paper baking cups do not fill the cups [illegible] than two-thirds full [illegible] and the cup will go out [illegible]

And do not use too hot an oven. As the paper is thin the heat will penetrate more quickly than when the cakes are baked in tins, and, of course, they bake in less time. You do not need the excessive heat required when tins are used.

Here are [illegible] recipes for muffins and cakes [illegible] we have baked to perfection in [illegible] handy [illegible] cups. Of course, if you prefer, you can make them in the good old fashioned way in your pet tins.

Sultana Muffins [illegible] 1 cup [illegible] flour, 1 tbsp. [illegible] 4 tsps. baking powder, [illegible] 1½ cups [illegible], 3 [illegible] butter or margarine.

Mix and sift [illegible] ingredients. Add [illegible] and [illegible] minutes [illegible] temperature 4[illegible] degrees.

Superior Date Muffins—One [illegible] cup butter, ¼ cup sugar, 1 egg, ¾ [illegible] flour, 3 [illegible] baking powder, ½ tsp salt, [illegible]

Cream the butter, add the sugar and the egg [illegible]. Mix [illegible] have [illegible]

[illegible] egg whites [illegible] 1 cup [illegible] portion of [illegible]

Beat egg whites very stiff. Add [illegible] beaten whites [illegible]

[illegible]—Two well beaten [illegible]

[illegible] cups. The [illegible] when done.

[illegible]—Two and one half [illegible] 1½ sugar, pinch of salt, [illegible] baking powder [illegible] short[illegible]

Mix the above the same as [illegible]. Now take about ¾ c of [illegible] for the [illegible] you mix [illegible] and [illegible] to make [illegible]

[illegible] for better baking.

Correct Manners Explained

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. How should a daughter [illegible] her [illegible] friends [illegible] Please give [illegible]

2. Should one girl [illegible] to another girl [illegible]

3. I work in an office where there are four [illegible] girls [illegible] There are also some young married men, but I am not acquainted with their wives. I have only met them once or twice.

Would it be perfectly correct to invite the single group to my home some evening? Mother and I have [illegible] We have a big dining room and sitting room combined, with a dining room table, library table and a piano in this room. We have a parlor, but use this room as a bedroom, as we do not have enough furniture to use as a parlor. With this equipment would you suggest inviting them?

4. If so what would you suggest for entertainment [illegible]

5. A [illegible]

READER

INTRODUCE a girl to your mother by saying, "Mother, may I introduce Miss Brown?" or "Mother, this is Mary Brown" or "Mother, this is Mary" or "Mary, this is my mother" or "Mary, do you know my mother?" Any of these forms is correct. The form "[illegible] is my ——" is especially good for a family introduction.

When you introduce a man to your mother say "Mother, [illegible] I introduce Mr. Anthony [illegible] may I present M[illegible] or "Mother, this is M[illegible]" or "Mother, this is M[illegible] my," or "Mack, this is my [illegible] sher."

5. I think that the most charming form of invitation for such a party is the personal note. It creates the party atmosphere even before the party. Something like this would be hospitably correct:

Dear Mary—Mother and I would be so happy if you will come to a small party that we are giving on the evening of Friday, April the tenth at eight o'clock. Will you come? It is to be very informal—just a "few friends gathered together"—and we very much want you.

Affectionate greetings from us both. Devotedly yours.

NATTY SUIT FOR THE LITTLE MAN

6181. The blouse may be of linen, madras, pongee or silk and the trousers of tweed, cheviot, linen or duck, or the entire suit may be made of printed linen or cotton with collar and cuffs of plain material in a contrasting color or in white.

The blouse has groups of tucks at each side of a center box pleat. The sleeves are in coat style and are finished with a narrow cuff. The collar is low on the neck.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. To make the suit for a 4 year size will require 1⅛ yards for the blouse and [illegible] yards for the trousers of 36 inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 1[illegible] in silver or stamps.

USE Gas ...THE BETTER FUEL for Noiseless Refrigeration

"I can't hear mine at all . . ."

SILENCE . . . absolute silence! That is one of the "beauties" of the new and scientific system of refrigeration with gas.

Silence is guaranteed—safely so—because there is no motor, no moving parts to vibrate or hum.

Gas provides a constant, dry, odorless temperature of below fifty degrees—keeps food fresh, prevents waste.

It's an interesting story. Investigate before you buy a refrigerator.

Call on your gas company for demonstrations of refrigeration, cooking, water heating, house heating, incineration and other uses for GAS—THE BETTER FUEL.

For the information of the people of New England a series of messages, of which this is one, is being published by the gas industry of New England. They contain interesting facts about GAS—THE BETTER FUEL—and its importance in your home and business.

WHY NOT TRY MY 'NO-WORK' SOAP—RINSO SOAKS CLOTHES WHITER THAN I CAN SCRUB THEM THAT SOUNDS GOOD TO ME...I'LL TRY IT!
NEXT WASHDAY
JUST LOOK! WHITER THAN EVER...YET I DIDN'T SCRUB OR BOIL...AND SO QUICK!
I TOLD YOU SO! NOW EDNA, LET'S GO TO THE MOVIES and Mrs. G. L. Mahoney of Dorchester says: "Clothes last longer".

"Rinso certainly works wonders! It makes such creamy, cleansing suds that all the dirt and stains soak out by themselves. I really have a soft 'snap' on washday now. And the clothes wear better—the life isn't scrubbed out of them.

"I also use Rinso for the dishes, floors, pots and pans, etc. I even keep a package in the bathroom for the tiles and basins, it does such a wonderful cleaning job."

MRS. G. L. MAHONEY,
64 Edwin Street, Dorchester, Mass.

You, too, can have a whiter wash

Millions use Rinso—in one month over 6,000 women wrote letters like the above. "Such rich, safe suds!" they say. And "Rinso is all you need—no other soap, no water softener" in washer or tub. Letter after letter says, "Rinso saves the hands." This compact granulated soap is economical—a little goes so far. Endorsed by the makers of 34 leading washing machines. Get the BIG household package of Rinso from your grocer.

This Day in Our History

ON June 7, 1776, Richard Henry Lee offered in Congress a resolution declaring that the colonies should be free and independent. On the same day Congress made a demand for independence instead of constitutional liberty.

"LITTLE SINS" By KATHARINE BRUSH

A Story of Gay Life at Harvard; a Battle of Hearts Between Girls

CHAPTER 33

"OH!" Gay sat erect again. "Hit the nail on the head that time, didn't I? And I was only guessing. Well! Who is she, Jerry? The little Quinn? Wasn't that her name—Quinn?"

Jerry nodded again. "You met her at Atlantic City."

"Oh, she told you?"

"She told me, yes."

"Told him everything I said, I suppose," Gay thought [illegible]

Aloud she remarked, smiling, "I remember she seemed very much concerned then because you drank so much and I said to her, 'Well, why don't you marry him and reform him?' I thought she could certainly do it, if anyone could. And she—has [illegible] married?"

"Not yet."

"Not yet!" echoed [illegible] "Not yet?"

"You see," went on Jerry, "she [illegible] But I say, Gay! Let's not talk here. A curbstone is no place at all to hash over the happenings of—how long has it been? A year? I've got a million things I want to tell you and ask you." He beamed. "I haven't even offered my felicitations! But I will. Listen: Have you had luncheon?"

"No, I haven't."

"Going to have it with the lord and master?"

"I—no."

"Then let's go."

He circled around the front of the machine, and took his place beside her, under the wheel. "Where'll we go?" His dark eyes turned to consult her face. "You're very gorgeous, Gay," he said.

She smiled. "Had you forgotten?"

"Of course not. People don't forget you, you must know that. If I shouldn't see you again for 20 years after today, I'd still remember you as the most glamorous person I ever knew. I said to Dolly once—about you—I said, 'When you look at her you think of orchids and feather fans, and pink lights and young men in [illegible] And there's a Lopez band in the sound of her name.'"

'I Like That,' Said Gay, And Hoped Dolly Hadn't

"I like that," approved Gay softly. [illegible] whether Dolly Quinn [illegible] liked it. And hoped [illegible]

"Where'll we lunch?" persisted Jerry, [illegible] on the switch. [illegible]

[illegible] I don't care. [illegible] Don't you usually [illegible] me once in a while, now that I've found you again?"

"I'd say yes," said Gay, "if I thought you meant it."

"I do mean it. I'd love it if you'd have lunch with me sometimes, see a matinee and that around now and then. But there's the husband."

"Well, there's the fiancee, for that matter."

[illegible] said Jerry confidently. "Dolly wouldn't object. Not in the least."

"Alan wouldn't object either," averred Gay. She added deliberately, "He wouldn't know."

"Oh," said Jerry again, this time in a tone of enlightenment. She felt the slow [illegible] flicker of his eyes across her face. "Aren't you happy, Gay?" he asked after a pause.

She shook her head. "Not very."

[illegible] said Jerry.

("Darling," she thought, "he is [illegible])

[illegible] "I knew Pomeroy at prep school. Not very well. But I always thought he was—magnificent. When I'd heard you'd married him I thought you were—[illegible] very much to be congratulated."

[illegible] "He grinned at her, half mockingly. "Won't you take pity on

The Silence Was Mutual And Three Blocks Long

Gay was silent.

"I'm terribly sorry," he concluded [illegible] silence was mutual then, and [illegible] blocks long.

[illegible] Gay said at last [illegible]

"When," inquired [illegible] "are you going to be [illegible]

"In June."

"June. Two months. Only two months."

"It's not very long, is it?" she [illegible]

[illegible] said Jerry [illegible] December, that she'd marry [illegible] And June it is. She won't consider shortening it by a day, even."

"But I think that's silly," Gay argued. "If you've kept on the wagon for four whole months, certainly you've proved—whatever you were expected to prove. She's being unnecessarily strict, it seems to me."

"Well," said Jerry, "you can't blame her. She has a father back in New Hampshire who's considerable of a drinker from all accounts, and her childhood recollections have made her almost fanatical on the subject. And besides—

He [illegible] "I told you I hadn't had a drop since December, since we made the agreement. That's not quite true. I weakened once—in [illegible] I guess it was—and got [illegible] Dolly found out about it. I told her myself, in fact. And [illegible] to take her into [illegible] one more chance—but only on [illegible] of getting [illegible] May, or April instead of June, [illegible]"

"I see," said Gay. "And so this is [illegible]"

"It is. If I fall off again, it's all over [illegible]" "But," declared Jerry positively, "I won't fall off."

"No, of course you won't," [illegible] the new [illegible] smiling, scheming eyes.

RUN-DOWN WOMEN REGAIN STRENGTH

Find Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound A Dependable Medicine

MRS. HELEN SEDIVI
4939 National St., Tacony, Phila., Pa.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I really can't express in writing how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. After my second baby was born I was always tired. I read so much of what the Vegetable Compound has done for others that I gave it a trial. It has certainly done wonders for me. I have praised it to single and to married women and intend to continue it. It seems that taking your medicine has made me a different girl. I also secured Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation and they have helped me wonderfully."—MRS. HELEN SEDIVI, 4939 National Street, Tacony, Philadelphia, Pa.

A Weak, Nervous Woman Helped

Terre Haute, Ind.—"I have a baby six months old and after he was born I felt so badly I could hardly do my work. I was weak, nervous and run-down. I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and would not be without it. I feel lots better and am able to do my housework. I also take Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation. I would like you to print this letter in some of the papers for I have often heard remarks about your testimonials. They say, 'You never see letters from anyone in this city. It is always somewhere else.'"—MRS. J. K. MONCE, 1801 Blaine Avenue, Terre Haute, Indiana.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND.

"WHY not a 'Be Kind to Husbands Week'?" suggests a Male Cynic. "A whole week of humane treatment once a year would do a lot toward mitigating marital martyrdom."

Well, why not? Why not remove the domestic check-rein and let a man "have his head" for a while? The chances are nine to one that he'd get tired out and winded and come trotting back to the old stall in a few days, neighing for food, petting—and the bicarbonate of soda.

Why not establish "regular drinking places," and let him imbibe all he wants for a week? It would probably make him sick and sorry, and CURE him more effectively than a dozen arguments.

* * *

Why not remove his blinders and let him get an eyeful of blondes and things? A good old family husband won't shy or kick up or get too skittish. And besides, nothing so quickly disillusions a man as getting plenty of what he thinks he wants; nothing kills his interest like satisfying his curiosity. And you could put a sponge in his hat to keep his head cool and his blood pressure down.

Why not stop coddling him with a blanket—or a sweater—every time he comes off the golf links in a perspiration and stands in a cool breeze? Let him get a cold and cough it out!

There is nothing like a cold, "with complications," to lend a woman angel's wings in her husband's eyes. No man ever so deeply appreciates his wife as when he is sick and helpless.

Why not let him go uncurried and unshaved for a few days. Let him get all saggy and dirty and then hear him bellow for the HOT WATER and the towels, when he comes back from his fishing trip.

* * *

Why not put plenty of oats in his feed and let him feel playful and coltish for a change? There is nothing like a little warm-weather fling to make a man settle down to the domestic gait and jog along contentedly for the rest of the year.

* * *

And why not go your own sweet way and turn him out to pasture for the summer?

You'll be surprised to see how soon he will get all "fed up" with clover and wild flowers—and cafeterias and poker parties and loneliness and "freedom" and indigestion.

Perhaps "Male Cynic" is right. Perhaps taking off the domestic harness once in a while and giving a man his head would cure up the sore spots and the grievances, and make him a better running mate.

It all depends on his age, his nature and his previous training. And on his HORSE SENSE!

FAMOUS COMPOSERS

By COZETTE DOUGLASS

JOSEPH JOACHIM, who is known as one of the greatest masters of the violin as well as a composer, was born at Kittsee, near Pressburg, on June 28, 1831.

Joachim studied the violin when he was but five years old, his first teacher being the leader of the Pest Opera House. The boy appeared in public concert with his master when he was but seven years of age.

In 1841 he entered the Conservatory at Vienna, where he studied under Bohm until 1843, when he went to Leipzig to enter the newly-founded conservatory. Mendelssohn on hearing him play pronounced that he did not need the regular training of a school, but recommended that he receive a thorough general education in music.

From Leipzig he went to London in 1844, where his appearance at the Drury Lane Theater created a sensation. This was the first of many visits to England, and after the foundation of the popular concerts he appeared there annually.

In 1850, on Liszt's invitation, Joachim accepted the post of concert master at Weimar, where he remained until 1853. Although this post brought Joachim into close contact with the advanced German Schools of Musicians, he was forced to resign his position in 1853.

A similar post was offered him in Hanover, where he was brought into an entirely different atmosphere, and while playing at the Dusseldorf festival, Joachim procured the intimate friendship of Robert Schumann. His introduction of the young Brahms to Schumann is an historic and famous incident of this time.

During his stay in Hanover, Joachim met the concert singer, Amalie Weiss, whom he married in 1863. After her retirement from the operatic stage, she devoted herself to concert singing and her interpretation of Schumann's songs was unrivalled.

Joachim was showered with degrees and decorations from famous universities and various countries. He was gifted with the power of interpreting the greatest music in absolute perfection.

Joachim's compositions, mostly for the violin, are of a sombre, passionate cast, the finest of which is probably the "Hungarian" concerto, opus in D minor.

Joachim died in Berlin on August 15, 1907, his wife having died eight years previously.

GENUINE PHILLIPS MILK OF MAGNESIA For Troubles due to Acid INDIGESTION ACID STOMACH HEARTBURN HEADACHE GASES-NAUSEA

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

SAVINGS BANK LIFE RISKS INCREASE

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

Deputy Commissioner Alice H. Grady of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Savings Bank Life Insurance tells me: "On June 1 the amount of Savings Bank Life Insurance in force was $54,500,000, — this is quite a remarkable showing when compared with the net gain for May 1927, which was only $321,129.

"Although there are only 10 savings banks which write the insurance, nevertheless the insurance written this year represents policy-holders in 149 different cities and towns in Massachusetts. The knowledge of this low-cost insurance is brought to their attention through 100 local savings banks which have established official agencies for the 10 insurance banks. The insurance departments of the savings banks do not employ solicitors, and the saving thus made is returned to the policy-holders in the form of dividends. As indicating the wide diversity of persons among whom this plan is becoming popular, it is interesting to note that 1821 persons insured during 19 weeks represent 218 different occupations."

Automotive leaders continue very optimistic. Chairman Pierre du Pont of General Motors finds the "industry may have reached the saturation point long talked about, but it hasn't reached the saturation point in reproduction of cars by any means." He states 90 per cent of the world's cars are made in the "good old U. S. A." and steps aside to call the Chrysler-Dodge merger a "wise move."

President A. P. Sloan, Jr., big New England executive of General Motors, thinks the automobile industry should continue to grow with the manufacture of better and more attractive cars year by year.

Recently I motored through Dover, N. H., visiting the great textile mills now situated on the site of what was the first sawmill in the Granite State. It sounded like "good news" to be told the Great Falls Mfg. Co. was operating its bleachery on full time; that the Sawyer Mill of American Woolen at Dover and the company's plant at Lebanon, where Dartmouth boys disport themselves, were doing a satisfactory volume of business.

The Cocheco unit at Doon is operating one department on a night schedule and the remainder of the factory 54 hours per week. The Exeter Mfg. Co., at Exeter, N. H., reports the largest business it has enjoyed in its century of existence.

* * *

Boston call money goes up from 6 per cent to 6½ per cent.

Call money is so much in the public eye at the moment that the following from the Wall Street Journal will interest you: "Money lent on call in Wall Street, attracted by relatively high rates like 6 or even 7 per cent, is not the kind of money which is used in commercial, industrial or farm loans on time. It is the surplus after all these demands have been met. It would otherwise lie idle, and as the banker anywhere is merely a merchant in credit he would be foolish not to take advantage of the best secured loans in the world and those most easily and quickly liquidated.

Active speculation in Wall Street today means active general business in the country at no far distant date."

Presumably Androscoggin Mills' decision on whether to liquidate or not will be made at the stockholders' meeting in Lewiston, Me., June 26. Clerk James E. Coburn has been busy sending out notices for this meeting. Treasurer Charles E. Inches believes there "is a future for the mill." At a directors' meeting Messrs. Burr, Clark, DeNormandie and Gardiner agreed with him. Chairman William Almy and B. H. Dickson, Jr., were quoted as favoring liquidation.

Here's a distinction that does not appear to make a difference, at least to the gasoline user. It is declared the 2-cent a gallon reduction in retail gasoline prices at Hartford, New Haven, Springfield and Boston, reported to have been made by Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co., was made by the company's dealers to meet competition. Pan American Company itself has not announced any change in its prices.

"BEAR" RUMORS FAIL TO FIND CONFIRMATION

Associated Press declares today's "recovery was stimulated by the lack of overnight confirmation of the two rumors which caused yesterday's late selling movement. The one that President Coolidge had written a letter to Republican Chairman Butler declining to accept the renomination under any circumstances was denied by Mr. Butler. The other involved a further increase in rediscount rates, beginning at the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank, directors of which meet tomorrow."

New York, June 7—Stock prices were irregular in the curb market today. Stutz Motor lost ⅛ at 15½. Northeastern Power was up ½ at 28. United Light & Power A and Servel each declined ¼ to 23 and 15⅞ respectively. Gold Seal Electric sold unchanged at 8⅛.

Plea for Animals in Safety Essay

By Frank A. Goodwin

Highway Safety Editor Boston Evening American and Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles for Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Fifth honors in the safety essay contest in the Boston public schools went to Margaret Waddell, fourteen, a pupil in Warren school, Charlestown.

Margaret brings out points not touched by the other winners, notably the heavy toll caused by automobiles among dumb animals and the economic loss.

The economic loss due to automobiles last year has been estimated as $680,000,000. Margaret's essay, which is highly meritorious, follows in part:

By MARGARET WADDELL
Warren School, Charlestown

In this age there is such an increase of motor vehicles being driven recklessly that there are many accidents which injure and kill thousands of dumb animals and people each year. Millions of dollars are also lost in the damage of property.

All these deaths and injuries are a great expense; therefore taxation is required to provide medical attention and for the maintenance of hospitals.

Margaret Waddell

Courts and jails are needed for the careless, reckless drivers who bring about these unnecessary expenses.

The traffic officers should be conspicuously dressed in a regulation uniform. The police force should not hire a man who is not in good physical condition or mentally alert. A traffic officer should be thoroughly reliable and fearless in discharge of duty. If he sees the mayor doing a thing wrong he will not excuse him, just because he is the mayor. He should be a law abiding citizen, impartial in his judgments.

Roads on which there is an abundance of traffic should be well constructed and kept in repair.

Laws that are passed should be strict and rigidly enforced. They should be comprehensive and apply to all parts of the state. If they are widely distributed, it will help people to know them better; and if the people break them, just fines and sentences should be determined.

If people carried out these rules and suggestions, we would be able to view the scenic attractions and meet the good and great. Then this would be an intelligent nation cultivating good will among all, and we would find that "a little bit of Heaven lay on this earth below."

Export Chief

Vernon E. Parmenter, export manager of the Dennison Manufacturing Co. of Framingham was re-elected president of the New England Export Club at its convention in Boston.

Vernon E. Parmenter, export manager of the Dennison Manufacturing Co. of Framingham, was unanimously re-elected president of the New England Export Club of the Boston Chamber of Commerce at the meeting held during the sixth annual New England Foreign Trade conference.

Donald J. Moore, export sales manager, was chosen first vice-president, while the following men were elected vice-presidents from each of the six New England States: Maine, H. R. Whitehead; New Hampshire, A. B. Knight, Jr.; Vermont, James F. Dewey, Massachusetts W. G. McCann; Rhode Island, Henry Buker; Connecticut, John H. Chaplin. Edward O. Otis, Jr., of the Boston Chamber of Commerce was re-elected secretary.

Members elected to the executive committee are: F. V. Bistrup, Robert B. Capon, Samuel H. Cross, J. L. Devaney, Harry E. Horn, Walter M. McKim, Donald J. Moore, Guy H. Nason, Vernon E. Parmenter, Albert H. Silber, Donald E. Wilbur, Richard B. Cross, Robert T. Pellandini and Edward O. Otis, Jr.

At the closing session of the sixth annual foreign trade conference a letter from Dr. Julius Klein, director, U. S. bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, was read by President Vernon E. Parmenter of the New England Export Club. This letter said in part:

"There are those who tell us that New England, like old England, has been living on her accumulation of capital, on her traditions, and on her third generation management in business; that her material equipment is out of date; that the present business situation is depressing; and that the psychology of her business men is such that they are not taking due account of their situation in the fact of competition from other sections of the country which are younger economically.

"But those of us who know New England give little credence to such gloomy views. With her methods of production and distribution becoming eminently more effective every year, with her leading business men constantly developing new expedients to meet competition, the New England of the spring of 1928 presents many most encouraging signs of a capacity and a determination to regain her premier position in our economic life, both at home and in her commercial relations with foreign lands.

"Our trade with the rest of the world is increasing steadily every year. It has already attained such proportions as make it a substantial stabilizer—a prosperity balance, as it were. And this means to New England, which has always been an exporting region. Whenever our foreign commerce prospers, New England prospers."

TRAVEL BY SEA TO HOUSTON

A distinguished group of Democratic leaders from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, as well as relatives of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, will be in the party which leaves for Houston on the liner Shawnee leaving New York Wednesday, June 20, according to Chairman Charles H. McGlue of the Democratic State committee of Massachusetts.

The New England delegates, alternates and friends who are going to Houston will join this group in New York. This party leaves on the Eastern Steamship liner Boston on Tuesday evening, June 19, at 5 p. m.

Alfred E. Smith, Jr., son of Governor Smith, and Edward F. Glynn, nephew of Governor Smith, have already booked passage on this trip. John J. Glynn, brother-in-law of Governor Smith, and John J. Curtin, who is the law partner of John J. Glynn and Alfred E. Smith, Jr., are also included in this group.

In addition to the large delegation from Connecticut and Massachusetts, there will be a representative group from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island to join with those from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

ADVANCE RUMELY SEEN AS MOVED BY A POOL

Heavy buying of Advance Rumely common and preferred was classified by interests identified with management as strictly pool manipulation. These interests declared emphatically that no whispers of merger negotiations have come to either directors or officers and despite fact that it is entirely possible that control might be obtained in open market, such a course would be distinctly a most expensive way of acquiring Rumely.

Officials have heard Harvester, Case and General Motors mentioned as possible purchasers of control, but say neither Harvester nor Case has any particular need of Rumely's facilities. They are doubtful if General Motors would go into open market for control without first approaching holders of large blocks, many of these holdings admittedly could have been had considerably below present market. Rumors that dividend arrearage on senior issues may be cleaned up shortly are characterized in well-informed circles as absurd.

State Street Notes

APPOINTMENT of Sheldon H. Fairbanks as general manager of new Boston Madison Square Garden and exposition hall in North Station Industrial Building is announced.

ESTABROOK & Co. have opened office in Second National Bank Building, New Haven, for investment business. Gordon Dana will be in charge.

GREEN Stores, Inc., has called for redemption on July 1, 1928, its 10,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred of $100 par value.

NEWTON will receive bids until June 8 for $180,000 3¾ per cent sewer and water bonds dated May 1 and payable 1929 to 1958.

NASHUA Manufacturing Co. declared usual quarterly preferred dividend of $1.75 per share, payable July 2.

ONE trader said it was just a question whether a group of big operators and the public were bigger than the Federal Reserve Board.

STEEL stocks act so well on bearish news that some traders believe. Steel prices may do a little better later.

SEARS-ROEBUCK was affected on rumor that it was decided to postpone action on a proposed 4 per cent stock dividend.

GIANNINI era of finance and banking appears to be also remarkable in that the march of progress is towards the rising sun.

PERE MARQUETTE handled 68,004 cars of revenue freight in May, against 67,475 in May, 1927.

FIFTH AVE. Bank declared regular quarterly dividend of $6 and extra of $35, both payable July 2

CALL money renewed at 6 per cent

GENERAL Motors opened with a block of 6000 shares at the spread price of 191¼ to 192½, extreme gain of 3¼ points.

RADIO opened 4 points higher at 195¼.

INITIAL gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by American International, American Linseed, Allied Chemical, Atlantic Refining, General Asphalt, International Combustion and Wright Aeronautical.

NEW LAW AID TO HEALTH

process, the danger to public health is only too plain.

MAY PURCHASE WATER

Floating or drinking of oysters and other shellfish is the practice of soaking the article in water, a large percentage of which is absorbed by the shellfish.

The fraudulent nature of this transaction is that the ultimate consumer will be purchasing water at oyster prices.

Just where the blame is to be placed is sometimes difficult, as it may occur at the hands of the shucker, the wholesaler, or the retailer.

The practice seems to originate in the theory that some washing of the shellfish is necessary after shucking, and there is some ground for this contention. If that were all, perhaps no harm would be done. But when the soaking of the shellfish goes to the extent that the product is heavily watered, the position is no longer tenable.

COPPER AND LEAD SALES BETTER THAN AVERAGE

New York, June 7 (AP)—Sales of copper and lead the last week were better than average with prices quotably unchanged. Zinc continues dormant, also with virtually no change in price.

INT. PAPER PLAN OF CONVERSION IS NEAR

International Paper has been under accumulation by houses with Boston connections on understanding that the new International Paper & Power Co., proposed holding company for International Paper and subsidiaries, would soon be formally chartered. It is understood holders of International Paper common will receive three shares in the new company for each share of International Paper held. These shares are expected to be of different classes, with the A stock receiving the same dividends as present International Paper common or $2.40 a year. With additional earnings expected from ownership of New England Power Association, the holding company would place the other two classes of stock on a dividend basis within a few years.

RETIRED CLERGYMEN AT LYNN CONFERENCE

Retired ministers of the New England Methodist Conference at the First Methodist Church renewed old acquaintances, after hearing several addresses by prominent leaders in the denomination. Rev. M. G. Prescott of Stoneham presided.

Greetings were read from Mayor Ralph S. Bauer, Bishop William F. Anderson and Rev. Dr. O. L. Hartman, editor of the Zion Herald.

Rev. Edson R. Leach, pastor of the church, extended greetings. Speakers were Rev. C. C. P. Hiller, superintendent of the Lynn district; Rev. Dr. E. A. Elliott, superintendent of the Boston district; Rev. George G. Clark of Sudbury, and Dr. Webster Powell, agent of the board of stewards.

Members of the Ladies' Aid Society served dinner, and a musical program was given by Miss Helen Ramsdell and Rev. M. M. Thornburg.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE ☆ ☆ BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN ☆ ☆ BOSTON, JUNE 7, 1928

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON:
1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND:
1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Speaking of Fishing

Perhaps President Will Motor to Minnesota and Try That Fightingest Fish, the Muskellonge

What gives a thrill in angling is a strike that shows snappiness of appetites and disposition.

Simply to hook and land a specimen of the piscatorial species which exhibits the characteristics of a waterlogged shingle is toil, not sport.

We hope, then, for Calvin's sake, that the carefully sorted and dieted trout in the fifteen pools at Cedar Island Lodge are not the only possible objectives of Presidential adventure. For, if they are, he could get quite as much of a kick by visiting the New England coast and still-fishing for cod.

If for any reason these pedigreed trout should prove disappointing, we suggest that he consider the pellucid waters of northern Minnesota, within easy reach by motor.

Here abide the fightingest fish that floats—the muskellonge. If he were to connect with one of these—oh, boy! A set-to with Congress would be as a pillow battle in comparison.

Science and Love

Or Testing Emotions of Blonde and Brunette

TESTING THE LOVE RESPONSE

Modern science, guided by moving pictures, says, regardless of Anita Loos, that a brunette feels love and the romantic passion more intensely than a blonde.

The ladies above, one blonde, one brunette, sat watching an intensely affectionate moving picture, while a machine registered their blood pressure and breathing to see how much the love scenes excited them and awakened their emotions.

The upper picture shows the ladies watching, and the picture below shows one of the scenes they looked at.

Greta Garbo, as you see, is playing a very emotional part.

As the lovers on the screen embraced, indicating that they thought pretty well of each other, the blood pressure of the brunette increased, her breathing became more rapid. The blonde's blood pressure and breathing were also affected, but not as much as the brunette's.

WHAT THE LADIES SAW

This was tried on different blondes, different brunettes, and with different passionate moving pictures.

In every case the brunette responded more satisfactorily, or, in the language of the day, proved herself a "wilder woman."

That's what the scientists and the machine said.

But the blonde lady possibly has her breathing and blood pressure under better control.

And, after all, it is HIS OWN EMOTION that the average gentleman cares about, not so much the emotion of the party of the second part.

Be that as it may, the scientists tell you, and swear they can prove it, that emotionally the brunette is ahead of the blonde. But you may do and think as you please about it. Cleopatra was an Egyptian brunette, Juliette a north Italian blonde.

GOOD CHEER GREAT ALL-ROUND TONIC

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE best general all-round tonic is good cheer. It has never yet been discovered what chemical action a pleasant feeling has on the body. But it as surely stimulates the glands, purifies the blood, tones the nerves and does other beneficial things to you as do vitamines or radium or electricity.

And more thoroughly. There are certain substances in chemistry known as catalyzors. They do not unite with any other substances, but certain chemical reactions take place when they are present. Certain kinds of chemical changes will refuse to operate except when they are in the house, as it were.

Altogether cheer is the chief catalyzor of the world.

The career of Chauncey Depew, which was recently closed, was a good illustration of this and ought to supply health lecturers with a lot of ammunition.

To be sure he lived simply and although he attended thousands of banquets he knew enough not to eat too much and had given up drinking and smoking in his later years. But a lot of people do these things and still die young.

Some people say that a certain religious faith will preserve life and stave off sickness, but the data on this theory are not very satisfying.

There is no doubt, however, that a sense of humor is the best friend of the human organism. More people worry themselves to death than die in any other way.

Why worry! If a thing can be helped, help it. If it can't be helped, laugh!

People who treat of unpleasant things, write about them, talk of them and enjoy them, who love rainy days and want to see the hospitals full and like to go to see "Desire Under the Elms," and "The American Tragedy" and "The Captive," say all that stuff is real. It is actual life. And the people who are always cheerful are merely kidding themselves.

There seems to be a general impression that truth wherever you find it is disagreeable. The most common notion about God connects him with disaster of some kind or another. We say of misfortune that it is the nature of God, and when anybody is suffering trouble he is chastised of God and the like.

What about God giving us a good time?

God making the liver operate?

God giving us a good digestion? And so on!

The fact of the matter is that truth is neither pleasant nor unpleasant.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

EVERYONE collects something. Lately I've been collecting alibis.

My job gives me a good chance. Most of the population of this man's town parks itself in my office, sooner or later. And beefs. And says what Big League Stuff it would have pulled if it had only had a chance.

After you've listened to that sort of thing for years n' years n' years, you begin to notice a certain similarity in the alibis. And it has occurred to me that it might save a lot of time to have a few of our best stalls compiled for ready reference. Which I have done. And I herewith present them with an affectionate dedication to the best little Alibi Artist I know—Myself.

HOW WISE I'D BE—If I only had time to study.

HOW LOVING I'D BE—If people appreciated love.

HOW BRAVE I'D BE—If it wouldn't worry dear old mother so and the doctor hadn't told me to look out for my heart and I didn't have such a sensitive nature.

HOW SUCCESSFUL I'D BE—If other people didn't have all the luck.

HOW ORIGINAL I'D BE—If other people wouldn't laugh at me.

HOW GENEROUS I'D BE—If I were sure that other people were deserving.

HOW PATIENT I'D BE—If other people didn't pick on me.

HOW HONEST I'D BE—If honesty really paid.

HOW AMBITIOUS I'D BE—If my folks hadn't broken my spirits when I was a kid.

HOW LOYAL I'D BE—If other people didn't doublecross me.

HOW THIN I'D BE—If I didn't have such a delicate stomach that I can't diet.

WHAT A WOW I'D BE IF I HAD ANY LUCK
ELSIE 6-7

HOW TIDY I'D BE—If I only had time to clean things up.

HOW GOOD NATURED I'D BE—If I wasn't so high strung.

WHAT A GOOD HUSBAND (OR WIFE) I'D BE—If my wife (or husband) only understood me.

HOW RELIGIOUS I'D BE—If I were only sure there was a God.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

GREEN banners Earth once more unfolds
And far hills gleam with marigolds.
The air is stirred with thrill of wings,
With throb of myriads blossomings.
On every hand a miracle
Of singing birds and buds that swell
The waking fields and woods disclose;
That which was dust is now a rose!
Dear Lord, if these, Thy children, too,
May with such joy their life renew,
Grant us new strength to take again
Into our hands the tangled skein.
Fresh courage that will fitly meet
All issues, triumph or defeat,
And may our souls green banners fling,
Our spirits know sweet tides of Spring!

New York Day by Day

by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 7—Three female theatrical stars in the same number of years have slipped quietly into oblivion. All became chronic alcoholics. In each case great patience was shown and every effort was made to curb their appetites through cures, sanitariums and such, but to no avail.

One forced audiences at three opening nights to endure the agony of watching her move through her scenes in a hiccupy, blurry haze. She would sway and fumble lines at important moments, and once at an out-of-town premier it was necessary to ring down the curtain in the middle of a rachitic speech.

Another whose success was a Rialto legend developed a penchant for, as a theatrical paper bluntly put it, "getting cock-eyed and quitting the show." At intervals that became increasingly frequent she would go on a protracted spree and would be found locked in her hotel room in a drunken stupor.

The third was less spectacular. She has been described as a congenital alcoholic, both parents reported being victims of acute alcoholism. She is said to have made a game battle to overcome her weakness and never appeared tipsy before audiences.

But she avoided engagements, drank deeper and in the end became hopelessly unfit for professional appearance. She was what Hollywood calls "a bathroom drinker"—indulging alone and in secret. This was her sole dereliction and her character otherwise was spotless.

Broadway has been whispering for some time of another star said to be traveling the same route, although this may be just gossip. For people so sensitive and highly strung alcohol is more dangerous than it is to the average person.

It is but fair to chronicle that among majority of stars, both male and female, there is comparatively little drinking. Indeed a heavy percentage are abstainers. The world of excitment and glamour in which they live is stimulating enough. And they "think of their public."

A RETIRED actress has made a tidy fortune in the past few years in the custom-made shirt business. She employed fetching young college girls to canvas office buildings with samples of shirtings. Those who secured 100 customers were taken into the business and there are now 10 partners. Her net income is $30,000 a year.

AUTOMATIC service is now extended to summer fruit drinks on West 42nd st., and an automatic ice cream soda fountain is operating across from the Winter Garden. With automatic cafes, serve-yourself suit, gown and hat shops clicking, a company has been organized to install a chain of coin-in-the-slot newsstands. The idea may spread, but it has a metallic coldness. It may appeal to moderns, but there are old-fashioned folk who want a little gossip and the human touch with a news vendor along with purchases.

A NEW YORKER who circled the globe four times has purchased a farm in Arkansas, where he expects to spend his remaining days. We wish him well, but venture the opinion there will come the day when he will exchange the cry of a hoot owl for the bump of a street car.

SPEAKING of travel, Manhattan is to have a travel theater where only movies of travel scenes will be shown.

THE most frequent American ocean-crosser is Gilbert Miller, a theatrical producer. And the most frequent of the California commuters is reputed to be Walter Wanger, a film executive, who has made 20 round trips to Hollywood in a year.

WALTER WANGER is an example of the ironical aura surrounding every man who weds a celebrated beauty. He is the husband of Justine Johnson, who sent masculine hearts pumping in the days of the Midnight Frolic. In his early 30's he is one of the high salaried men in the film business. Yet invariably people refer to him as "Justine Johnson's husband."

High Cost of Crime

$500,000,000 a Year in One State

How much would honesty be worth to the public and to those that lead unsatisfactory criminal lives?

Lieutenant-Governor Fitts, of California, says "the property losses of California caused by lawbreakers are in excess of $500,000,000 a year."

If thieves, hold-up men and others in California alone turned honest, the State would save enough to build the Boulder Dam four times faster than the dam could be built. And criminals, working instead of stealing, would be adding to their own and the general prosperity.

The crime problem, much complicated by our bootlegging-prohibition crime wave, is a serious problem. And end of crime would mean prosperity for everybody, reformed criminals included.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

People will not look forward to posterity who never look backward to their ancestors.—Burke.

There is as much folly in hypocrisy as in vice. It is just as easy to be an honorable man as to seem one.—De Stael.

To do your best is to be one man picked out of a thousand.—Phillpotts.

Curiosity is only vanity. Most often we only wish to know in order to talk about it.—Pascal.

Long customs are not easily broken; he that attempts to change the course of his own life very often labors in vain.—Johnson.

Praises to the vanquished are an additional laurel to the victors.—Voltaire.

Malice feeds on the living; after life is over, it rests.—Ovid.

Love, as though some day you would have to hate; hate, as though some day you would have to love.—Chilo.

Nothing is so popular as kindness.—Cicero.

He that shortens the road to knowledge lengthens life.—Colton.

To appear an honest man it is necessary to be one.—Boileau.
